GOVERNOR,
J. B. DAWSON.

Late from France.—We have received by the ship Aspasia, Capt. Bennett, from Havre, whence she sailed on the 8th March, our regular files of papers of that place to the 8th, containing Paris dates to the 7th. Nothing more important is furnished by these papers than what has already been communicated by the way of England.

NATCHEZ, April 26.

Police Affairs.—Last week we made some statements respecting the arrest of Mr. John Armstrong, a citizen of this place, on the charge of having broken open the clerk's office of the United States' District Court in New Orleans, and taking from thence certain papers, bonds, notes, &c., which papers and notes were found on the night of the 11th instant in his house in this city. On the next day he was examined by justice Tooley, and acquitted, the evidence being such against Armstrong, as to render it very doubtful as to his being in any way a participator in the crime with which he was charged. The witness, however, in favor of Mr. Armstrong, (Henry W. Harroll) absconded the night of the day on which the investigation took place. Mr. Armstrong had been a resident of this city for several years, and for some time past was considered by many of our citizens a respectable man; and as one of the police of the city he had always shown himself active and efficient. Numbers of our citizens still consider him innocent of the charge against him, and having a wife and children, commiserate his situation. The governor of Louisiana having demanded Mr. Armstrong from the executive of this state, an order was issued by the latter to the sheriff of this county; and about nine o'clock on the 24th instant, he, in company with the United States' marshal for Louisiana, made search for Mr. Armstrong, but he had fled, having, it is presumed, learned that the marshal had arrived for the purpose of apprehending him. Time can alone show the guilt or innocence of Mr. Armstrong, the number and description of counterfeits, and the extent of their operations. A large number of counterfeit notes were found torn to pieces on the common in front of the city, on Tuesday morning.

Steamer Brandywine.—Of the awful destruction of the Brandywine we are enabled now to lay before our readers an authentic account, having been politely permitted to copy for publication the protest of Captain Hamilton of the said boat, which being made under oath, is entitled to implicit credit.

STATE OF TENNESSEE.—SHELBY COUNTY, SCT.
To all whom this instrument of Public Protest may concern.

Know ye, That on the fifteenth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred, and thirty-two, personally appeared before me Nat. Anderson, a Notary Public, duly commissioned and qualified in and for the county of Shelby and state of Tennessee, captain William Hamilton, Master of the steamer Brandywine, of Nashville, burthen four hundred and [illegible] tons, and entered this his Protest against the waters and damages to accrue from any accident happening on the late trip of the said steamer Brandywine, and particularly against the loss of said boat by fire the evening of the ninth instant: and said Captain William Hamilton being duly sworn, saith

That he left the city of New Orleans on the 3d of April (instant), at 5 o'clock, P. M. having on board a full cargo, bound to Louisville and intermediate ports, and no accident of any kind happened or occurred to said vessel until the evening of the ninth of said month, said boat running with a full head of steam alongside of the bar at the head of the Twelve Outlets, about thirty miles above the town of Memphis, at 7 o'clock, P. M. a fire broke out among some carriage wheels and pieces of carriages which were wrapped with straw in the usual manner for putting up such articles for shipment at said city of New Orleans. Said carriage wheels and pieces of carriages were laying on the boiler deck near the officer's rooms and entirely under the hurricane roof. Said fire was communicated, as is supposed and believed, from fire blown by the force of the wind then blowing almost a gale, from the furnaces up through the place where the chimneys pass through the boiler deck and carried aft among said carriage wheels and pieces of carriages, and said fire was entirely the effect of accident and in nowise or manner owing to the negligence of said master or crew. Said fire was first discovered by the Pilot at the wheel, who immediately gave the alarm, and turned the boat's head to the shore of the bar, from which she was about a quarter of a mile distant, where she struck in nine feet water. The master, the said Hamilton, was on deck, and immediately raised one of the wheels to throw overboard, but finding that the wind, which during the whole time continued to blow hard, only scattered the straw and fire and served to increase the flames, he desisted; one of the crew threw a bucket of water on the fire, but was immediately driven away —all hope of saving the boat being lost by considerations for his own life. So violent was the fire, that when the boat struck the bar, though she had only a quarter or less than a quarter of a mile to run, for she struck in nine feet water, that all her decks and cabin were in flames, and in less than three minutes from the time the fire was first discovered, it was impossible to live on board of the boat. Said boat had on board nearly one hundred and fifty passengers and crew, (no exact number known, as all attempts to save even the books were fruitless and of no avail) and of that number only seventy six persons escaped. Some persons perished in the flames and some drowned.

WM. HAMILTON.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 11th day of April, 1832. NATH'L. ANDERSON, N. P.

An instance of fraud was discovered recently by a mercantile house in this city, which, in novelty and impudence, exceeds that of the rock, which made its voyage across the Atlantic imbedded in a bale of cotton; and, in fact, equals almost any of the wooden nutmegs, or cabbage-leaf segar stories of our own countrymen.—A highly respectable importer, on opening several cases, invoiced as "Italian Sewing Silk," discovered two out of three of the cases to contain Bricks, neatly and carefully packed up, sealed, marked and numbered, in due form. The bricks, leaving the silk account minus three or four hundred dollars, rendered it necessary the matter should be inquired into; the result of the investigation showed satisfactorily that the cases which were brought to this city by one of the New York transportation lines, were received here in precisely the same condition in which they were taken from the ship by which they were imported into New York, so that the fraud must be of foreign origin. This supposition is also sustained by the peculiar form and quality of the bricks, which are decidedly of foreign manufacture; and from the measures that have been taken to trace the imposition to its source, we think it more than probable the silk-bricks will experience the fate of the "cotton stone," in being reshipped to the order of the owner.—He is, no doubt, chuckling at the success of his villainy, though we fancy the laugh will be on the other side of his mouth when he finds his bricks staring him in the face again, as we trust they eventually will.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

A new octavo magazine, well executed, has lately appeared in Canton, (China.) The fourth number, which has been received in this country, contains many statistical, historical and geographical facts respecting China; from which it appears that the city of Canton and its suburbs contain a population of 1,220,400 men, that is to say, in this number are not comprised the children and infirm. A Chinese author gives the following description of Canton.

"Canton a country of water, drawn like crescents from boats, the canals and rivers are covered with them, they serve for habitations to the poor people; the women hire themselves to work boats or shell fish. If a boat arrives from elsewhere, ten or more people immediately present themselves to take in hand the small or larger drag forward the vessel with rouge along the banks of the rivers.

The children of both sexes, quite naked, go and search in the mud of the rivers, or on the sea shore, to catch crabs, lobsters, shrimps, squills, [illegible] shell fish,

We, whose names are undersigned, having seen a piece of architecture entirely composed of brass rule, and considering upwards of three thousand separate pieces do hereby pronounce it to be the most curious, and the very finest specimen of rule work (to speak technically) that has ever come under our cognizance. The industry and perseverance required in its composition, the talent of the arrangement, the beauty of the workmanship, and the difficulty of its accomplishment, justly entitle it to the admiration of the Trade at large, and to which we most cordially bear our testimony by subscribing our names for the purpose of encouraging a young artist and very deserving man in a branch of the Printing business altogether novel and ingenious."
—N. Y. Com. Adv.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

A friend who was an eye witness of the performance, has presented us the annexed sketch of an experiment which was tried, without any previous preparation of the road, on the New Castle and Frenchtown Railway, with the Pennsylvania Locomoter of Col. Long, in the presence of numerous spectators. We learn that the impediments in the road prevented the entire progress and return of the car, from one extreme point of the route to the other. We give the account in the words of our informant: The weight of the entire train, including the locomoter, three cars attached, &c. was something more than ten tons. The weight of the engine exclusive of its load, was about three tons. The cylinders had just received fresh packing, which was screwed up very tight, and for a considerable time much obstructed the working of the pistons.

The time actually employed on the road was two hours and fifteen minutes, of which fifteen minutes were spent in stoppages occasioned by other carriages at work on the road. Accordingly the time actually consumed in running, was two hours. In this time the entire distance actually travelled by the Locomoter, was twenty seven miles, the last three of which were performed in the short period of seven and a half minutes, the steam blowing off at the safety valve, under a pressure of seventy five pounds to the square inch. The weight of the engine being three tons, that of its load, including the cars, was something more than seven tons. The consequence of its equivalent aggregate weight on the rail road, at a speed of two and a half miles per hour, is known from repeated experiments to require two good horses actually hitched, and laboring to their maximum of useful effect. Hence the actual performance of the locomotive was quite equivalent to that of ten horses laboring to the best advantage.

The celebrated experiments on the Manchester and Liverpool rail road were made on a road perfectly level and clear by art. Those of the Pennsylvania locomoter were made on an undulatory road, no attention having been paid to cleanliness, but on the contrary, the rails were generally covered with a profusion of dust, and in many places with sand freshly thrown upon them by the workmen engaged in digging and dressing along the road.

The performance of the Pennsylvania locomoter, especially on the last three miles of its run, by every rule of fair calculation, far surpasses that of the best English engines, as exhibited in the recorded experiments on the Manchester and Liverpool rail road.

Agreeably to Mr. Wood's late treatise on railroads, an American edition, which is about to issue from the press of Messrs. Carey and Hart of Philadelphia, the average best performance of the rocket, was equivalent to a load of twice the weight of an engine, (exclusive of the weight of an engine,) drawn at a speed of 14 miles per hour. AN EYE WITNESS.

SHOCKING OCCURRENCE.—We learn from the Canadian Emigrant, that on the 17th inst. a man named Drouillard, came to the house of one W. Jones in Baldoon, the Township of Sombra, Upper Canada, stating that some one was in pursuit to kill him, and that he had great trouble with his brother. Mr. Jones seeing that he was not in his right mind, endeavored to soothe him, and asked if he would be reconciled to his brother if sent for. To this he assented; but soon slipped out of the house and took to the woods, being followed three or four hours by Mr. Jones and several neighbors, who not able to overtake him gave over the pursuit. This was in the forenoon. Drouillard arrived at the house of a Mr. Reynolds, 12 miles from where he had first started in the evening. He there stated that he was crazy, and wished to be bound. This was done, when on saying the fit had left, he was unbound. This was repeated three times. After being loosed the third time, he seized a scalping knife from the fire place, and stabbed Reynolds three times. Reynolds's wife who had gone to bed, being awakened by the noise, got up, and on entering the room found her husband on the floor and Drouillard [illegible] him holding by the hair in one hand, and having [illegible] in the other. She instantly seized Drouillard by one arm, while her husband wrenched the knife from him and threw it out of his reach. Drouillard then drew [illegible] to a corner of the house where there was an axe, which [illegible] Mrs. R. seized hold of at the same time. [illegible] it away from her, D. then grasped [illegible] the throat with one hand, holding [illegible] with his teeth. Reynolds now called [illegible] children to hand him a knife, which having [illegible] he cut D.'s throat, who instantly expired. [illegible] died the next day. Both these unfortunate [illegible] families.—Detroit Courier, April 6.

Papers with regard to the Burrillville [illegible] are informed by a gentleman who says he was at Burrillville on Tuesday, that the inhabitants who reside in the immediate vicinity of the Burrillville Bank, and who had bills of that institution in their possession, seized upon the Cashier, and by threats of bodily injury, compelled him to redeem their bills in specie or current notes. Our informant produced fifteen silver dollars, which he said he received from the Cashier for bills of the aforesaid Bank. We learn further, that the High Sheriff of Providence county has since committed the Cashier to jail at the suit of the Suffolk Bank.

There may not be a special statute to authorize the above named proceedings; but JUSTICE, were the opinion acquired upon the subject, would sanction them without even stopping to sum up.—Pawtuxet Chronicle.

Molasses and Sugar from Potatoes.—In the neighborhood of Jaffrey, N. H. there is now preparing an establishment for the manufacture of sugar and molasses from Potatoes. It is calculated to pay for the potatoes their cash value, 17 cents per bushel, and a net profit, 26 cents per bushel, above all expenses.

A new Office.—We observe among the list of officers for the town of Newburyport, Mass. a "weigher of onions" What next!

Railroad.—It is contemplated to erect a railroad from Massilon to Pittsburg, Pa. Massilon is on the Ohio Canal about 40 miles South of Lake Erie. The distance thence to Pittsburg is about 120 miles, to Philadelphia 440 miles. From the same place the distance to New-York is 709 miles.

ST. LOUIS, April 10.

Military Movement.—The sixth regiment U. States infantry, under the command of Brig Gen. Atkinson, left Jefferson Barracks on Sunday the 8th instant, in the steamboats Enterprize and Chieftain, for the Upper Mississippi, under the orders of the government, to cause the delivery by the Sacs and Foxes of the murderers who, last year, violated the neutrality of our soil, and insulted our flag by the massacre, in the village of Prairie des Chiens, of twenty-eight Menominee Indians; or to chastise the nation should they refuse to surrender the criminals. We also understand, that Gen. Atkinson is ordered to interfere and, by force if necessary, cause a cessation of the hostilities, aggressions and murders, heretofore constantly prosecuted by the different Indian nations in that quarter, upon each other.

Splendid Specimens of Printing.—We have received from London two specimens of printed rule work, far exceeding any thing of the kind that we have ever seen, or ever expected to see. They are architectural prints, upon imperial sheets of drawing paper, and though composed entirely of brass rules, resemble very splendid and perfect engravings. One of these prints is composed of upwards of three, and the other of upwards of four thousand moveable pieces of brass rules. The pictures represent the fronts of two Grecian temples, with pillars and pedestals, casements, pannels, cornices and capitals, including all the ornamental work of architecture which skill could devise, or taste approve. These pieces are the work of Ebenezer Parkes, Brass Rule Cutter, and Printers' Joiner, London. They may be seen at this office.

The following certificate, signed by sixty-four printers in London, accompanies one of these prints.

We, the undersigned, having seen a piece of architecture entirely composed of brass rule, and considering upwards of three thousand separate pieces do hereby pronounce it to be the most curious, and the very finest specimen of rule work (to speak technically) that has ever come under our cognizance. The industry and perseverance required in its composition, the talent of the arrangement, the beauty of the workmanship, and the difficulty of its accomplishment, justly entitle it to the admiration of the Trade at large, and to which we most cordially bear our testimony by subscribing our names for the purpose of encouraging a young artist and very deserving man in a branch of the Printing business altogether novel and ingenious."

Domestic Silks.—A friend at South Union, a Shaker village in Logan county, Ky. has sent us a skein of sewing and a patch of silk cloth, cut from a web of fifty odd yards—samples of articles manufactured at that village, from cocoons raised there chiefly last summer. The sewing silk is of a bright brown, fine, strong, smooth and even; and decidedly superior to what is commonly imported. The other sample is a white twilled fabric, very pretty for some purposes, though it wants the firmness and gloss of European manufactures. Viewed as one of the first experiments in that line, it is certainly a successful one. This country must be well adapted to the production of silk. The demand for sewing silk, and some other articles, may very soon, with a little care and attention, be supplied without going abroad for them. Raw silk may become an important article of export. And the people who have given the demonstration of the fact now before us, are entitled to credit for their industry and enterprise. They have shown, at the same time that, whatever may be the errors of their religious observances, they have qualities which should not only exempt them from persecution, but entitle them to the kind consideration of the rest of the community.—Kent Com.
