A BLUNDERING DIFLOMAY.—The Philadelphia Press says that the Hon. Edward Mórris Erakine, appointed Scorelary to the British Embassy at Washington, is the very identical gentleman who was lately suspended and recalled from Turin on account of extraor-dinary carelessmens, or stupidity, in so copying a dispatch to the Sardinian government, from the British Poreign Secretary, that he made Engiand speak threateningly to Sardinia, instead of putting a simple question in the most amicable manner. He has probably been reprimanted, at Downing street, by Lord Malmesbury, and is let pretty easily of bossibet of being dismissed. He may thank his aristocratical connections for this commutation of punishment. It is to be legsed that the will not blunder at Washington, for in the present state of the right of search question, the least carelessmens night be productive of very unpleasant consequences.
