

PEASMAKING UNPROFITABLE.

Attends to Reconvert Two Estranged Friends to Peasmaking. The mutual friend business has long ago been demonstrated as the most unprofitable in the world. To attempt to bring together estranged friends always results in disaster, and one little woman on the South side is lamenting her want of tact in ever attempting it. For her example may lead others to be more discreet. That is why she is willing that her experience may be related.

GHOST IN A POKER GAME.

A West Virginian in his Jockey was mixed with others. "I was a little stiddy" the other night out at a private house. Folks come away, and the old man here in the city, slavin' his life away—that's what the wimmin folks think—goin' to ball games in the afternoon, eatin' Saint Nick dinners an' hardlin' the chips till two or three a. m.

The two estranged ones had not met for ten years, when they were separately invited to a luncheon at the m. f. n. house, each without the knowledge of the other. At the first moment of reunion old feuds were forgotten in the mistle of years, and the two rushed into each other's arms and embraced, woman fashion. Then they stood back and looked at each other.

GHOST IN A POKER GAME.

"Without lookin' at his cards after the draw Ike pushed the limit to the center sayin' somethin' about wishin' the game was wide open and he'd burn tar on us. The old man raised ag'in, and said he wouldn't care if the game was a thousand limit. Standin' pat, you know, an' bluffin' it through. Beat of 'em kept quiet, and put up without a word.

The bureau of the international postal union at Bern has published its report of the postal and telegraph business of the countries of the world for the last fiscal year. It is incomplete in that it does not furnish exact figures in every instance regarding the number of pieces of mail matter handled, but its statement of receipts and expenditures of the service is official.
