The recall of the Grey ministry is a circumstance of par amount importance, not only as it respects the domestic plated measures. All that has as yet been done by carl here. Greyand his party, is in direct hoscility to the Wellington and Liverpool administrations; a close intimacy has been established with France; the doctrine of regal privilegus has been acceptain in the person of Don Miguel; it has been decided in the parton of Fordinand of Spain; it was berely submit-tel to during the Polish struggle against Russia, and it was absolutely laid saide, in placing Leopold of Saxe Coburg. mon the Belgian throne, to the exclusion of the house of Nassau. These circumstances have placed England beyond the pale of logitimecy; as that work is interpreted by the and as France, by her revolution, virtually now placed in one scale white Austria, Prussia and Russia G. y. he could not prevail on any man of weight or incorpy the other.—Little doubt can be entertained that, had then of Wellington retained the premiership, the circumstances of Wellington retained the premiership, the circumstances of the country would have been materially various been materially various been materially various been materially various and succeeded the resignation of Earling closely watched by the two other powers, the kins of control of the people that the duke of Wellington retained the premiership, the circumstances of the country would have been materially various been expressed the country would have been materially various been expressed to the premiership for the country would have been materially various been expressed to the proposition of Earling closely watched by the two other powers, the kins of the country would be considered to provide the country would be considered the duke of Wellington retained the premieramp, and this y are been expressed by riotous and tumunuous as commances of the country would have been naterially value been expressed by riotous and tumunuous as commances of the excitament of the ried—Don Pedro would have been repudiated—France moment, t might bet have been regarded—but the promoment, t might bet have been regarded—but the promoment, the beautiful promoment of the bounce of commons on the 15th Alay. the reform question, in England, would have slumbered as conditions of the house of commons on the 15th Alay, soundly as heretofore. We stop not to examine the probable results, had such counsels prevailed; but it must be apparent to every one, that the recall of the Grey ministry is parent to every one, that the recall of the Grey ministry is pregnant with importance, not to the domestic repose of England only, but in its effect throughout Europe, as the guarantee of popular institutions.

Without being more particular, it is perhaps enough to say, on this head, that, as nearly may be, the negative votes are divided between the two great pointed parties, and, what is particularly acceptable to us, between the two great geographical divisions of our country.

We confess our gratification at having arrived thus near to "a consumation devoutly to be wished," the sa usinctory adjustment of the tariff—a matter of as great moment as difficulty, the latter greatly increased by the excited state of public feeling or the subject throughout a large portion of the country.
