street. The story of this new edition of Pygmalion's sta-tue, quoted from the diabolical works of Bolnacensis, in into a divisite protty poem, in imitation of the German mys- value. tic ballad, by one of the most popular poots of the age. cles, mentions the existence of a marvellous statue, gilted with all but animation and life, in possession of the house of the Bracciani, and adverts to a proplecy, concerning the last of the race, connected with the legend of the statue.

From these texture and incidents a becutiful opera h een composed by Herold. His fresh, sprightly style, posessing the mellowness, without the vain floriture of the Italian school, is wellknown to those who have drawn de. light from the melodics of Marie. The opera is of that or-ject of the brig Hermoso Habanero, the Court r hints that the law has been complied with in securing the duties. H so, it must have been done by the usual custom-house bouds, and if by bonds where could they be recovered, should the consignoes of goods refuse to most their obligations? From nature of the avowed opinions of the nulliflers, the answer the cannot wear the shadow of a doubt. We would, therefore rather infer, that this peaceable compliance with the revenue laws, taken in conjunction with many other circumstances, is an indication of returning reason among our brethren of South Carolina, and that nullification will end like an idiot's tale, "full of sound and fury, signifying no-
