AUSTRIANS FAIL IN CRUEL PLAN

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Rome, July 4.—I have just learned details of the cruel regime Austria has inaugurated in the little conquered kingdom of Montenegro. My informant is a neutral diplomat of high standing, who, for obvious reasons, does not wish me to disclose his name. His account is as follows:
"The ruthless rule of Baron Otto, former Austrian minister plenipotentiary at Cetinje, together with the work of the hangman and the persecution on a large scale, have so far utterly failed in curbing the spirit of the courageous, liberty-loving population of Montenegro."

Use Different Methods
For Italy a radically different method was adopted. Italian newspapers containing defamatory articles concerning Montenegro and the part its people had played in the war were introduced and circulated among the best class of Montenegrins.

Hangman Works
During the first five months of Austrian rule the hangman worked day and night and the corpses of the victims were left dangling from the scaffolds for several days as a warning. One of the first victims of General Otto was General Martinovich, who was interned and whose house was requisitioned for the use of one of the Austrian officers of the Cetinje garrison.

Citizens Are Dying
Today thousands of Montenegrins guilty only of a moral rebellion against the new rulers and of preserving their love for independence, are slowly dying in the Mula and Punta d'Ostro prisons at Cattaro. At Niksic two aged cousins of King Nicholas, Gluro and Bozo Petrovitch, were arrested and interned in Austria.

Third Major League Is Among The Possibilities

By JACK VEIOCK.

New York, July 4.—Look out for a big shake-up in the minor leagues shortly after the close of the war.

It is bound to come, and when it arrives there will be some surprising developments, if the dope sheet reads correctly at present.

For the past five or six years there has been a wave of unrest sweeping through the minors. The big loads in the "bush" league puddle are not satisfied with conditions by a long shot, and the more aggressive ones among them are planning to start a revolutionary movement that will change the complexion of the baseball map considerably.

Less than a month ago feelers went out in American association and International league ranks to test the temperature of the club owners on the third major league proposition. The result of the test was not satisfactory, probably because of the uncertain outlook for baseball in these war-torn times.

The writer has had an ear close to the ground for several months. And the murmurs that have been skating hither and thither were not whisperings of a will-o'-the-wisp by a long shot. Baseball men prominently connected with the game, even in the major leagues, admit that the baseball map is in need of alterations.

The new move to revise the baseball map is not a move that has been made with an idea of stirring up further strife in the game. If it is accomplished it will be done regularly and smoothly, and there will be but little friction.

Quite naturally, the third major league idea embraces cities in the American association and the International league. Which cities will be chosen to form the new top-notch circuit is still a matter of argument, but it is said by those who are closely connected with the plan that a circuit which will be more compact than either of the two big leagues is to be suggested.

Such a move will necessitate the redistricting of other minor leagues, and a raise in rating for at least eight cities now in Class B company. Other details of the plan have been told before, but in all the change will be a sweeping affair when it comes, and there are any number of baseball men who admit some unwillingly and others willingly—that it is coming.

It sounds like a bum note on the trombone, this revamping idea, but it isn't. Baseball needs a shaking up, and if it can be accomplished along peaceful lines it will be the best thing that could possibly happen for the future of the game.

Retrenching because of the high cost of wartime baseball has not been a success in American association circles to date.

Several weeks ago President Tom Hickey decided that the league could get along with the single umpire system. At least, Hickey fired half of the umpires and tried to get by with the one-man scheme, only to hear a howl go up that shook the very foundation of the league itself.

The club owners soon discovered that the class of baseball dished up by AA teams was all too fast for one umpire to handle successfully, and those who had supported the plan to reduce were among the ones who howled the loudest.

Reducing the umpire staff is about the "seventh" unpopular move that has been made in association ranks this season, and rumors indicate that the affairs of the league are going to be as peaceful as a chance bout between two strange wildcats during the coming winter.

HAVANA HOLDS RED CROSS FEST

By International News Service. Havana, Cuba, July 4.—Cuba's new alliance with the United States in the war against Germany was cemented in notable fashion here tonight. In the great Capoteam theatre, notables in Cuban official and commercial life joined with members of the American colony in a patriotic celebration for the benefit of the American Red Cross, which was attended by more than 2,000.

President Menocal, William F. Gonzales, the United States minister and almost every Cuban and American citizen of prominence in Havana were in the throng.

In previous years the observance of the Fourth of July in Cuba has been restricted almost exclusively to the members of the American colony; but this year, due to the entrance of Cuba into the war on the side of the United States as a friend and ally, and to the wave of popular patriotism which followed the declaration of Cuban principles by President Menocal and prominent officials of both the major political parties, the event partook of unusual importance.

Every seat in the theatre was occupied and throngs stood up inside or surrounded the building, while mingled coats of arms of the United States and the Cuban republic, and bombs and fireworks lighted up the scene.

When the presidential party, to be followed soon after by Minister Gonzales and officers of United States warships here for shore leave for the holiday arrived, the enthusiastic Cubans gave tumultuous cheers.

Miss Lucille Lawrence, the American prima donna, the Havana boy scouts and the women of the Cuban and American Red Cross organizations participated in a series of historical tableaux and patriotic songs.

Mrs. John Draper, president of the Havana branch of the American Red Cross, was in general charge of the celebration.

MAGISTRATE LETS DOG DECIDE OWNERSHIP

New York, July 3.—Solomon selecting the right mother exercised no more judgment than did Magistrate Dodd in arranging a dispute between two angry women as to ownership of a dog.

Mrs. Josephine de Kofsky had Mrs. Mary Rosen summoned to court on the charge that Mrs. Rosen had her pet dog, which had disappeared some days ago.

"It's my dog," said Mrs. Rosen in answer to the charge.

FIND NOTE TO KAISER; NOW A DEAD LETTER

By International News Service. Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—Joseph J. Johnson, in charge of the post-office inspectors' office here, has received a letter mailed at an office "somewhere in Kansas" to the Kaiser. Unfortunately for the writer and perhaps for the peace of mind of the intended recipient the letter will not reach its destination.

Under an order issued by the post-office department on the entrance of the United States into the war all mail addressed to Germany is sent to the dead letter office.

It is said that the writer expressed his opinion of the ruler of Germany in no uncertain terms. Under the rules of the department the office is not permitted to disclose the town from which it was mailed.

SOUTH HAS MANY SUBSTITUTES AVAILABLE FOR BREAD MAKING

Washington, July 4.—The South has at its command a variety of foodstuffs which can be used to excellent advantage as part substitutes for wheat flour in making bread and biscuits. Housewives are urged by specialists in the United States department of agriculture to try some of these in their bread-making. Not only will they be able to effect a saving in household expenses, but by reducing in the South the consumption of wheat flour brought in from other sections of the country, they will be helping materially to leave the railroads free to transport necessities.

Among the wheat flour substitutes recommended by specialists for the South are: (1) Banana, cassava, dasheen and sweet potato.

(2) Rice and kaffir. (3) Soy beans and peanuts.

The substitutes in group 1 should be mixed with good white flour in the proportion of 1 to 3. The resulting bread is excellent in every way. Only a little less rich in protein than ordinary bread, it is much richer in minerals and other important constituents. Dried bananas should be used in making banana flour; the dasheen and sweet potato may be boiled and then mixed with flour, or the dried product may be used.

Rice and kaffir should be mixed with flour in the same proportion as the substances in group 1-1 to 3. Bread made from kaffir is somewhat darker in color but richer in protein and ash than white bread. Brown rice flour mixed with wheat is also somewhat darker in color than white bread, but it is as rich in protein and other food constituents. The use of polished rice does not add either to the appearance of the bread nor to its nutritive value.

Soy beans and peanuts are extremely rich in protein and fat. Flour prepared from either of them, when mixed with white flour in the proportion of 1 to 3, is well adapted to make a nutritious bread. Bread made from white flour alone contains less than 9 per cent protein and only about 0.3 per cent of salt-free ash, while bread made from soy beans and wheat flour contains about 11 per cent protein and 1 per cent salt-free ash. Bread made from peanut and wheat flour mixture contains about 12 per cent protein and about 0.62 per cent salt-free ash. Thus it is seen that even when only one part of these substitutes is mixed with three parts of white flour the resultant bread is about 40 to 80 per cent richer in protein and about 50 to 300 per cent richer in mineral ingredients other than salt.

As each person, it is calculated, consumes about three-quarters of a barrel of flour a year, and as the population of the Southern states is approximately 30,000,000, it is obvious that the general use of these wheat-flour substitutes would result in a marked reduction in the total quantity of wheat flour consumed in the South.

On the basis of a total flour consumption in the Southern states of over 22,000,000 barrels, it has been estimated that if the practice became universal the use of 25 per cent of flour substitutes grown in the South would save over 5,500,000 barrels of flour.

As a matter of fact, however, the saving would be far greater than this because a much larger proportion of flour substitutes can be used in the preparation of biscuits than in bread. In view of this fact, the total saving might amount to 10,000,000 barrels of white flour. All this flour, it must be remembered, is imported into the South from other sections and the consumer must pay freight rates on it.

DOUGLASS GETS ANOTHER BOUT HERE MONDAY

Jack Douglas, bantam champion from the Pacific coast, is to get another bout here as a result of his showing against Bobby Hughes, with whom he drew in fifteen rounds.

In his next local appearance Douglas will meet Arthur Imons, who was matched with Johnny Fisse for next Monday night. Owing to trouble with his eyes, which have been affected for a long time, Fisse was forced to decline the match and Douglas was substituted.

It will be Simons' first bout here in several months.
