FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,
HENRY CLAY.
FOR CONGRESS—FIRST DISTRICT:
GEORGE K. ROGERS.
SECOND DISTRICT:
EDWARD D. WHITE.
REPRESENTATIVE—STATE LEGISLATURE.
FELIX LABATUT.

NEW-ORLEANS:
THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 1, 1843.

☞ The nominations for Congress, by both parties in the several districts of the State, are now complete, and the canvas may be said to have fairly opened.—The locofocos, with wonted zeal and activity, are even at this comparatively early stage of the contest, putting forth their utmost strength, and employing every auxiliary stratagem that may tend to ensure success. It is one of the secrets of the victories which so often crown the efforts of that party in political struggles, where from every calculation of chances, they should be worsted; that they always look upon defeat as a remote contingency, which exertion and prompt organization and discipline may enable them to avoid; while even in those districts where their avowed numerical superiority places them above the dread of discomfiture, they are never deterred by overweening confidence from marshalling their forces and laboring with the same unremitting diligence as if the contest were severe and the issue problematical. We grieve to say, that the whigs, as a party, are less disposed to bestir themselves, and are but too apt to trust to the inherent goodness of their cause, forgetful that in all popular governments, where the decision of political questions rests with the masses, that one man's arm, well prepared for an ordinary rail road, at greater speed than it is now done through the agency of 5,000 pounds of steam—and all resting from natural causes, which by proper vigilance might be counteracted or even turned to advantage, should be watched and guarded against. The whig party are looked upon. An engine can be applied to the largest vessels at an expense of less than one fourth the expense of a steam engine, and occupying not more than one-half the space, removing at the same time all danger usually attendant upon steam—and power can be increased as long as material can be made to bear the strain, as it works on direct application to the mechanical conclusions and constructions, where power diminishes in proportion to the increase of velocity. With a sufficient degree of patronage, I can secure to the world a scientific improvement hitherto unsurpassed.

Respectfully,
W. NELSON.

New Orleans, June 1st, 1843.

RIOT AT CARLISLE, PENNSYLVANIA.—There has been another row between the students of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and the military. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times thus describes the affair:—

Carlisle, May 16.

Yesterday the "Carlisle Infantry", a corps composed of the low-lived rowdies, and commanded by one of the most worthless men in the county, while parading in front of the Legislature in such a manner as to render them exceedingly close and doubtful. In neither will the majority probably exceed one hundred votes. This approximation to equality in numbers, proves at once the absolute and indispensable necessity of thorough, active and continued exertion, in order to secure a triumph. The party which works the hardest will most assuredly win the day.

In regard to the whig candidates in these districts, they are unexceptionable in respect to capacity, sound, none of participation, and those qualities which make men fail conductors in deliberative bodies. Hon. HENRY A. ROGERS in the First, and JOHN MONTAS in the Second, are men against whom the violence of partisan fury can utter no calumny. They are both eminently deserving the favor of their constituents. One has already portrayed an able and faithful member of our national councils. The other has given an earnest of his attention to business and devotion to the duties of a representative, while a member of the State Legislature. It is our steadfast belief that both can be elected, and that to bring about a result so auspicious, union, energy, and above all, prompt and efficient organization are alone required.

If Mr. BOTTS did not before the Presidential election know anything about the bond and law suit, touching which he brought forward a charge of swindling against Mr. TYLER, our friends of the Tropic will perceive that our remarks in that connection have no application. But Mr. BOTTS, after Mr. TYLER deserted the party that elected him, rose in his seat in Congress and gave a history of the President's political career in Virginia, replete with accusations of gross deceit, instances of ungenerousness, perfidy and mendacity.—These Mr. BOTTS must have known before the election. Mr. MARSHALL came out of his baptismal and secret and cautic replies to Mr. BOTTS—in which he berated the Virginia delegation for allowing such a man to be run upon the whig ticket. Gov. Isaac the whig party has suffered enough through Mr. TYLER's defection, to have a little extra gall for those who foisted him upon us, or those who profess to have had reasons to doubt his honesty, but refused to warn us in season. For our own part, we regard these [illegible] with willingly assisted in [illegible] Mr. TYLER upon the whig ticket, as deserving little better of the whig party than he does. Entertaining these opinions we did not however feel called upon to say anything about the quarrel now raging between Mr. BOTTS and the President, until the latter entered so virulent a character as to become disgusting by reason of its gross personalities and disgraceful to the nation, from the exalted station of one of the parties engaged in it.

SUMMER RETREAT.—Blue Lick Springs.—There is no more agreeable place in the Valley of the Mississippi to spend the summer months than the Blue Lick Springs in Kentucky. To the southerner they are more acceptable than other resorts of the kind, being within four hours drive, upon the best McAdamized turnpike road in America, of Maysville. To Maysville, steam packets now run daily from Cincinnati or Louisville, and a voyage to either of the latter places in one of the floating palaces of the western waters is quite as agreeable as good fare and good company generally speaking, can make it.

The waters of the Blue Lick are becoming popular and of such general use in the south as to supersede the necessity of an eulogy upon their good qualities. The establishment at the springs is under the direction of the Messrs. HOLLIDAY, and we venture to say they there is no watering place at the east or west kept in better style, or abounding in more resources of amusement and comfort. They are on the Licking River which furnishes good fishing—the hills around are celebrated for the number of deer that are found in them, and the hotels and cottages of the establishment are of superior construction. It is the great resort of the west and south, where the elite of each section will annually meet together.

☞ We regret to hear of the death of WILLIAM WARD, Esq., who died at the residence of his son-in-law, Colonel Henry Johnson in Washington county, Miss., last week. Mr. Ward was a brother of George Ward, Esq., of this city, and was one of the most honorable and amiable men we have ever known.—Tropic.

☞Mr. WARD, we believe, died in YAZOO County, whither he had gone to pay a visit to his relations.—He fell a victim to the consumption, brought upon him from habits of intense application to literary pursuits.—He was a man of vigorous understanding, a close student and manifold possessed of social qualities that made him beloved by all his acquaintances. But for disease that undermined his constitution and prepared an early grave for the hopes that his genius encouraged he might have become one of the ornaments of his age.

The Hon. JOHN A. BOLLES, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has presented to the National Institute seven volumes, embracing the Scientific and Agricultural Reports, Hitchcock's Final Report on the Geology of the State, &c. as a token of the interest felt by Massachusetts in the Institute, and of his own personal regard.

The Hon. Mr. LEGARE, Secretary of State ad interim, has presented to the National Institute a box of Minerals, from the mines of Cornwall, transmitted to him for that purpose by R. W. Fox, United States Consul at Falmouth, England.

A Convict, confined in the Massachusetts State Prison, succeeded to escape a few days ago, after the manner of Hiram Edwards. He was detected and secured. A day or two after, an officer going to his cell, discovered him hanging by his neck by his suspenders, which he had torn cut down, and life not being quite extinct, he was resuscitated after considerable difficulty. The convict's name was Rich.

Mr. CLAY.—The editor of the Quincy Whig says:—It is said to be the intention of Mr. Clay to visit Missouri and Illinois during the course of this or the coming month. If he wants to see our public square filled with tobacconists, let him visit Quincy.

☞ The Hon. JOHN D. CATON has been appointed by Governor Ford, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Illinois, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the Hon. John M. Robinson.

Mr. JOHN R. THOMPSON of Princeton, N. J., was recently offered by the President, the mission of Chargé d'Affaires to Portugal, but declined.

NAVAL.—The steamship Union, Commander Hosken, from Norfolk, arrived at Boston, on the night of the 26th inst.

The author of the annexed communications, proposes giving a series of lectures in this city, with a view to raise the means to put his invention to the test of practical experiment. Wishing great faith, connexion, in the discoveries that are brought the experience of ages and the long established principles of science, we yet recommend these lectures to the patronage of the public, as the object of the author is a praiseworthy one, and there may be more in his philosophy than was dreamt of by his predecessors.

Messrs. Editors:

Having overcome the great difficulty in the science of mechanics, which has ever puzzled the philosophy of those who have preceded me, and which is that of combining power with velocity, I respectfully ask to lay this communication before the public through the columns of your journal.

We have among us every day, men who are allowed the fullest encouragement as scientific men, and receive the most unlimited degree of public patronage. But when we come to take into consideration the actual merits of those individuals, and their ideas all originating in the discoveries of others, and in many cases where the public patronage is extended, its remuneration is realized, in the introduction of scientific improvements by which the public are served.

For instance, in Dr. Lardner, who realized in this city, clear of all his expenses, two thousand dollars, in expatiating upon the scientific discoveries of men of genius, and whose every calculation of chances, they should be worst ed; that they always look upon defeat as a remote contingency, which exertion and prompt organization and discipline may enable them to avoid; while even in those districts where their avowed numerical superiority places them above the dread of discomfiture, they are never deterred by overweening confidence from marshalling their forces and laboring with the same unremitting diligence as if the contest were severe and the issue problematical. We grieve to say, that the whigs, as a party, are less disposed to bestir themselves, and are but too apt to trust to the inherent goodness of their cause, forgetful that in all popular governments, where the decision of political questions rests with the masses, that one man's arm, well prepared for an ordinary rail road, at greater speed than it is now done through the agency of 5,000 pounds of steam—and all resting from natural causes, which by proper vigilance might be counteracted or even turned to advantage, should be watched and guarded against. An engine can be applied to the largest vessels at an expense of less than one fourth the expense of a steam engine, and occupying not more than one-half the space, removing at the same time all danger usually attendant upon steam—and power can be increased as long as material can be made to bear the strain, as it works on direct application to the mechanical conclusions and constructions, where power diminishes in proportion to the increase of velocity. With a sufficient degree of patronage, I can secure to the world a scientific improvement hitherto unsurpassed.

Respectfully,
W. NELSON.

RIOT AT CARLISLE, PENNSYLVANIA.—There has been another row between the students of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and the military. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times thus describes the affair:—

Carlisle, May 16.

Yesterday the "Carlisle Infantry", a corps composed of the low-lived rowdies, and commanded by one of the most worthless men in the county, while parading in front of the Legislature in such a manner as to render them exceedingly close and doubtful. In neither will the majority probably exceed one hundred votes. This approximation to equality in numbers, proves at once the absolute and indispensable necessity of thorough, active and continued exertion, in order to secure a triumph. The party which works the hardest will most assuredly win the day.

In regard to the whig candidates in these districts, they are unexceptionable in respect to capacity, sound, none of participation, and those qualities which make men fail conductors in deliberative bodies. Hon. HENRY A. ROGERS in the First, and JOHN MONTAS in the Second, are men against whom the violence of partisan fury can utter no calumny. They are both eminently deserving the favor of their constituents. One has already portrayed an able and faithful member of our national councils. The other has given an earnest of his attention to business and devotion to the duties of a representative, while a member of the State Legislature. It is our steadfast belief that both can be elected, and that to bring about a result so auspicious, union, energy, and above all, prompt and efficient organization are alone required.

If Mr. BOTTS did not before the Presidential election know anything about the bond and law suit, touching which he brought forward a charge of swindling against Mr. TYLER, our friends of the Tropic will perceive that our remarks in that connection have no application. But Mr. BOTTS, after Mr. TYLER deserted the party that elected him, rose in his seat in Congress and gave a history of the President's political career in Virginia, replete with accusations of gross deceit, instances of ungenerousness, perfidy and mendacity.—These Mr. BOTTS must have known before the election. Mr. MARSHALL came out of his baptismal and secret and cautic replies to Mr. BOTTS—in which he berated the Virginia delegation for allowing such a man to be run upon the whig ticket. Gov. Isaac the whig party has suffered enough through Mr. TYLER's defection, to have a little extra gall for those who foisted him upon us, or those who profess to have had reasons to doubt his honesty, but refused to warn us in season. For our own part, we regard these [illegible] with willingly assisted in [illegible] Mr. TYLER upon the whig ticket, as deserving little better of the whig party than he does. Entertaining these opinions we did not however feel called upon to say anything about the quarrel now raging between Mr. BOTTS and the President, until the latter entered so virulent a character as to become disgusting by reason of its gross personalities and disgraceful to the nation, from the exalted station of one of the parties engaged in it.

SUMMER RETREAT.—Blue Lick Springs.—There is no more agreeable place in the Valley of the Mississippi to spend the summer months than the Blue Lick Springs in Kentucky. To the southerner they are more acceptable than other resorts of the kind, being within four hours drive, upon the best McAdamized turnpike road in America, of Maysville. To Maysville, steam packets now run daily from Cincinnati or Louisville, and a voyage to either of the latter places in one of the floating palaces of the western waters is quite as agreeable as good fare and good company generally speaking, can make it.

The waters of the Blue Lick are becoming popular and of such general use in the south as to supersede the necessity of an eulogy upon their good qualities. The establishment at the springs is under the direction of the Messrs. HOLLIDAY, and we venture to say they there is no watering place at the east or west kept in better style, or abounding in more resources of amusement and comfort. They are on the Licking River which furnishes good fishing—the hills around are celebrated for the number of deer that are found in them, and the hotels and cottages of the establishment are of superior construction. It is the great resort of the west and south, where the elite of each section will annually meet together.

☞ We regret to hear of the death of WILLIAM WARD, Esq., who died at the residence of his son-in-law, Colonel Henry Johnson in Washington county, Miss., last week. Mr. Ward was a brother of George Ward, Esq., of this city, and was one of the most honorable and amiable men we have ever known.—Tropic.

☞Mr. WARD, we believe, died in YAZOO County, whither he had gone to pay a visit to his relations.—He fell a victim to the consumption, brought upon him from habits of intense application to literary pursuits.—He was a man of vigorous understanding, a close student and manifold possessed of social qualities that made him beloved by all his acquaintances. But for disease that undermined his constitution and prepared an early grave for the hopes that his genius encouraged he might have become one of the ornaments of his age.

The Hon. JOHN A. BOLLES, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has presented to the National Institute seven volumes, embracing the Scientific and Agricultural Reports, Hitchcock's Final Report on the Geology of the State, &c. as a token of the interest felt by Massachusetts in the Institute, and of his own personal regard.

The Hon. Mr. LEGARE, Secretary of State ad interim, has presented to the National Institute a box of Minerals, from the mines of Cornwall, transmitted to him for that purpose by R. W. Fox, United States Consul at Falmouth, England.

A Convict, confined in the Massachusetts State Prison, succeeded to escape a few days ago, after the manner of Hiram Edwards. He was detected and secured. A day or two after, an officer going to his cell, discovered him hanging by his neck by his suspenders, which he had torn cut down, and life not being quite extinct, he was resuscitated after considerable difficulty. The convict's name was Rich.

Mr. CLAY.—The editor of the Quincy Whig says:—It is said to be the intention of Mr. Clay to visit Missouri and Illinois during the course of this or the coming month. If he wants to see our public square filled with tobacconists, let him visit Quincy.

☞ The Hon. JOHN D. CATON has been appointed by Governor Ford, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Illinois, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the Hon. John M. Robinson.

Mr. JOHN R. THOMPSON of Princeton, N. J., was recently offered by the President, the mission of Chargé d'Affaires to Portugal, but declined.

NAVAL.—The steamship Union, Commander Hosken, from Norfolk, arrived at Boston, on the night of the 26th inst.

GENERAL WASHINGTON'S FIRST YEAR.—Every incident in the life of Washington is full of interest. That plain heroic magnitude of mind which distinguished him above all other men, was evident in all his actions. Patriotism, chastened by sound judgment and combined with foresight, prompted all his public acts, and made them examples for the study and guidance of mankind. It has been said that no one can have the shortest interview with a truly great man without being made sensible of his superiority. Of this many, who have some why ascribed the title of great, this can by no means true. Its applicability to the character of Washington, is verified in the following interesting account, related by a correspondent of the Charleston Courier.

"I was present," says the correspondent, when General Washington gave his last vote. It was in the spring of 1799, in the town of Alexandria. He died the 14th December following. The Courthouse at Fairfax county was then over the market-house, and immediately fronting Gadsby's tavern. The election was progressing—several thousands of persons in the Courthouse yard and immediately adjoining streets; and I was standing on Gadsby's steps when the Father of his Country drove up, and immediately approached the Courthouse door, and when within a pace or two of the steps, he was met by several gentlemen, from different directions, evidently without the least concert, and placed themselves in positions to oppose his progress. He paused a moment, looked at General's ascent of the steps, should they fail so to prevent's ascent of them. I was instantly at his back, and in that position, entered the Courthouse with him, —followed in his wake, through a dense crowd, to the polls,—heard him vote,—heard him declare, as he turned around, "I have performed my duty, I shall vote no more,"—and turning to the receiving table, audibly pronounced his vote—saw it entered,—made a graceful bow, and retired.

The Revel family have arrived in New York.

TIT FOR TAT.—We have heard some speculation as to what the great constitutional issue will be when they reassemble at Jalapa on the second Monday in June next.—Mississippian.

We have no, and the impression seems to be, that it will be decided in the Louisiana Legislature.—How was the great convention of slaves on the 23d February.—Southron.
