1864. The New Orleans Times:

Port Hudson, Nov. 3.—The Docks passed down the river with孟加拉的船。

The New Orleans Register, of the New Orleans and New Orleans Colonization Line,
of the steamer "Majestic," bound for New Orleans, arrived at the time the accident occurred, the steamship having passengers aboard, the greater part of whom were women.

The steamer left with the water several feet above the dock, and, running over the end of the steamer, it was dashed to pieces.

Her freight, it is presumed, was principally Cotton, which had been loaded at Port Hudson.

She was worth $15,000 at least.

Several persons were killed, and many were injured.

The engine and boiler exploded, and
the vessel sank.
