FOR GOVERNOR: J. B. DAWSON

We had so sail beyond Charle aton yesterday. The Assertions of the 18th instant, says that much sair source the sail to sport sections of Goorgis, as a considerable in the appearance of the fracture, that the first blow finished him. We have the above facts from one of the rise, in the Savannah river, cocurred some two weeks past. Much of the low grounds have been under water; and the alluvion has, most probably, prevented the transportation of the mail through that state.

The forgetfulness of patrons has been a not unfrequent subject of complaint with many of our confreres. Periodical appeals have been made to the sympathics of subscri ber's pockets, by many a hard faboring and hard pinche typo; but few so pitaly as the following call of the publisher of a newspaper in Agelica, New-York. He adjures them in the most expostulating manner to come forward and pay their dues. He says that he "can't live so, nor he wont." He is willing to take any thing in payment, from "pineknots to potato-parings"-but pay he must have. Men, says he, who think that printers can live on air, decerve themselves to live on "skunk-cabbage tea, flavored with assafætida." To the which anathema, for one slave of suffering, we most potently say amen!

NOT THE HARPSORD WEEKLY SON.—On the INURDER AT THE STATE PRISON.—On the night of Tuesday last, a Mr. Hoskins, one of the prison guards at Weth rafield, was murdered by four convicts under the most appalling circumstances. It may be well to state that the cells are in one solid block, entirely covered by an outer building, between which and the cells is a large area where "the centry calks his lonely round" in by an outer building, between which and the certs is a large area where "the centry walks his lonely round" in the night season, the privaters being locked in about sundown. Very soon for the guard had been relieved and somewhat before admired, a convict whose name is Teller, and whose copy and the Southeast corner of the block, and whose copy and the Southeast corner of the block, and whose copy are the Southeast corner of the block, and whose copy are the Southeast corner of the block, and but which he had contrived to convey to his the lock of a bit which he had contrived to convey to his cell agreement time or during the afternoon.

Had made a hole about two inches in diameter, he succeeded the south of the succeeded th as tions in an passed on his round, I ciler went to a cell occupied by Czesar Reynolds, a black, who handed out through the sina. grated opening near the top of his door, a steleton key, with which Toller unlocked Czesar's door. They then followed Hoakins silently and at distance until they came to another accomplice whose cell they unlocked. they came to another accomplice whose cell they unlacked, and with whom they continued to follow on directly after the guard, till they came to a fourth.—They immediately released him, and the four then nois-lessly traversed the entire circuit of the area, keeping the same distance behind Mr. H. and so manageing their infernal plot as not to be suspected by him, till they came to a fifth whose cell they came to a fifth whose cell they came to a fifth whose cell they threatened with violence unless he would instantly join them. Fearing the consequences, he refused, and they left him, as the guard had walked more than half way round again.

Two of the villains armed with a steel bar 18 inches long and two thick, then proceeded on at a quicker pace after.

21r. Hoskins, while the other two taking the same direction repaired to Cassar's cell near the North west corner of the block, where they awaited until Mr. Hoskins had approachblock, where they awaited until Mr. Hoskins had approached to within the netwelve fort—they then stepped out in front of him. A larmed at their sudden and unexpected appearance, he halted and enquired what they were about, when one of the two in his rear struck him with great violence on the top of his head and broke his skull. As he fell be exclaimed "don't hill me," and a stiffed cry of murder was heard—and of the monsters having saring upon him, and covered his mouth with his hand. The unfortunate susad probably servived but a few moments and of the service of the se him, and covered his mouth with his hand. The unfortunate guard probably servived but a few momenta, and after the monsters had deliberately felt his pulse and ascertained his death, they advanced to a small iron door, through which the provisions of the prisoners are passed to them from the hichen, and with another skeleton key attempted to open it. Fortunately one of the wards of the key was breks off in the attempt, and as they found it impossible to turn the built with the remaining portion, they endeavored to pry the door open or break it with the steel bar. This they could not do, The female apartment is separated from the male apartment by a thick stone w."!, and the entrance from the latter is secured by a massive iron chid door.—During the stack upon Hoskins and the efforts to escape which immediately followed, the noise was heard by a fe-malk convict, who in a most praise worthy manner, called.

House of commons—Friday March 22. A number of petitions were presented for the better observance of the sabbath, which Mr. Cebbett condomned as ariginating in pounds, shilkings and pence feelings, and not in a respect for the gospel. In observing on one petition in favor of the sunacipation of the Jews, the same honorable member said emancipation of the Jews, the same honorable member said that the presenter of the petition (Mr. E. J. Stanley) had doclared that the Jews were one of the most industrious classes of his majesty's subjects. Now, he would ask the honorable member whether he could produce a Jew who ever dug or went to plough, or made his own shoes or coat, or who ever did any thing except got money from the pookets of the people? Mi. E. J. Stanley, in reply, said that as the honorable member had once condemmed Prime as a blashemer.
