Another Murder;—Last night about 11 o'cleck, on the Level, opposite the steamboat landing, a man by the name of Henry Peter Luran, was attacked by two individuals who indicted upon him five or six stabs. This morning at about 7 o'clock he was in a very low state and it was with the utmost difficulty that any information could be obtained from hims; no hopes were then entertained of his recovery. He stated in his declaration, that two men, one of whom he called lobes one chapter. called Johnson or Johnston, the other unknown to him, but dissend in a green coat with a black velver oillar rushed upon him unawares, that Johnson etruck him several blows under which he fell and that he received five or six stabs; on receiving the blows he cried out, "Johnson don't kill me;" the guards coming up. Johnson and his accomplice took to flight. A warrant has been issued and the officers are in quest of the murderers. In more—yes, I have come here according to my vocation, to tripress my sympathy with the oppressed, and my deep abhoreace of the oppressor. To cheer, if I can, the tribute of an injust law, in his dungeon, and to denessoe the tyrant in his seat, amongst the Lords of the land. To pour out the full vial of my wrath and ineignation apon the men who have cheated the people and belied themselves—who picked out of the mre the filthy garland which have graced the bows of their adverseries, but can only make their ugliness more hideous. and belied themselves—who picked out of the mire the filthy garland which have graced the bows of their adversaries, but can only make their ugliness more hideous. You know whom I mean—the Whigs—yee, the faithless Whigs. When you want to describe any thing base in the extreme—any thing salvish, hypocritical and hateworthy, call it a Whig! I advise every man, why I advise my own children not to curee or awear, of call any mae by an ill name; and I advise you, if any of you ever viced, and ready to rip out an ugly oath, or tell any fellow that he is a blackguard and a knave, just use a civil word, and say he is a Whig! and that you despise him. Do not think that I suppose the Torice better than the Whigs. Why, I perceive you anticipate me. The reason is this. The Whigs are a whining, whimpering, hyperilical set of knaves and political secondrale—who, like saintly theves at field preaching, turn up the white of their eyes to heaven, to induce others to look the same way, while they pick the pockets of the devoat congregation. But they will get into a passion if you tell them this, and they will ask you, did we not cast the beries out of office, and give you parliamentary reform! Unfortunately, the truth was all the other way—you it was that reformed the parliament, which put them into the piaces which they hold and diagrace. But I may be asked, did you not vote for it. I did; but I done so, because I, as a lawyer, thought it better for my client to take the instalment of five shillings in the pound of the national debt, and then to sue for the remaining afficen shillings. The Whige came into power at a period, when the reins of this Empire had fallen from the hands of their predecessors. They came into power at a time when this Government could not be carried on the same wants. But are the great brith-righte of man me e respected; is human liberty more safe, are the people le a plundered and oppressed, than when under a Tory administration. They are both alike the enemies of the people had been touched.

plundered and oppressed, than when under a Tory admini-tration. They are both alike the enemies of the people. But the schoolmaster had been abroad. The people had been taught severe lessons of oppression. The political Unions had bound them together in an adamantide chain, which neither the open violence of the Torics, nor the more dan-gerous artifice of the Fatray Wards can never bright people have risen in moral excellence and worth; their soun-judgment and strong common sense, have placed them upon a level. Yes, they have surpassed their Lords in knowledge and in information of every kind. Catch mone of those lordly are ticrats, set him down to an epistle, or an essay, or a Kin's speech, and you will find rine out of ten of the members of a Political Union who will do it better. A Lord indeed! Why tiere are few of them that could spell a latter throughout without the assistance of a dictionary, to say nothing of the composition. There is the hero of Waterlootook to his letters and despatches—what man of the Union could write such drivelling stuff? But they will sak, would any man of the Union fight such battles? What! Who tought them? Who wan Waterloof! Is it not scknewledged that there never was a batte fought with less genoralship, or with more individual biavery? It was the heroism of the Scotch and Irish soldiers, who won the fit led of Waterloo, oud redeemed the honor of England, and the liberties of Europe, from the blunders of Wellington.

"Look through the whole history of England, and point out if you can, the period of the same duration, in which there has been one half, one fourth, aye, I will say one sixteenth of the number of prosecutions of the Press, which have taken place since these pattry Whigs have been in power. The Torics did not prosecute as many Printers in 25 years, as these liberty loving Whigs have prosecuted in 3.
Who gave a coercion bill to Ireland? Was it not the Witgs?
And who is it that is now striving to put down the liberty of the Press in that country—to sinhe public opinion—to trample down civil and religious freedom in the dust, and even to crush the great right of the subject to petition itself? Is it not the base, pusillanimous, and destardly Ireacherous Whigs?"
