Washington, September 20.—Guerrillas still inlest the south side of the Fotomac, capturing satiers' property. On Thursday thirteen horses and three full wagons, together with five men, fell in the hands of filteen uniformed querrillas commanded by Captain Stringfellow, while on the way from Catlett to Bristow Saution.

Yesterday there was heavy skirmishing along the Rapidan, and parties from the front, to day, anticipate a general engagement, though the opinion does not prevail outside of the army, at is in not thought either army will cross the river. The senson has made not flank movement on General Meade, thus showing his policy to be defensive only, to prevent our army from creasing the river. The reported evacuation of Richmond can probably be accounted for from the fact that the rabels are withdraw ing stores from the line of the Tennessee Pailroad, and accutering them south through North Carolina, toward Atlanta. This is caused by the capture of East Tennessee by Barnaide.

Advices from the Army of the Potomasse state that the rabels appeared in increased force along the Hapidan, as though determined to relat a crossing by our forces, but showing no disposition to cross themselves. There is, without doubt, an important representative in Richmond from General Forcy, commanding the French forces in Meason, whose mission is to ascertain from the Confederate Government at what points French troops are desired for the service of the Southern Confederacy.

Will it startle the people of the North, who have been unable to account for the confident tone of the Bouthern people and Southern press, even after the severest reverses, if the information is imparted to them that there are reasons to apprehend immediate action on the 'part of the Freuch Government in behalf of their new ally, the Southern people and the freuch in the people of the North to impart to them the information that the Freuch navy and a fleet of Confederacy?
