

THE BELL

PUBLISHED DAILY BY F. BELLOT.

NEW YORK & LONDON.

TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1828.

NOTICE. May 10.
The Bell has given way on the platform of Joseph Erwin, Esq. two miles below Philadelphia, and also on that of Mrs. Wilson next below Mr. E. The gentleman who came up in the carriage informs us that the breach is about double width, and from an inch to six deep. It is not expected the ship will stop.

LONDON, May 19.

We have received intelligence from Lisbon, up to the 18th by the ship George IV. who performed the voyage in six days. We observe with much regret the influence exercised on D. Miguel, by the queen and the fanatic party, in his late proceedings.

The Wellesley 74, sailed from Lisbon on the 11th, with the 11th regiment for Cadiz; the 5th regiment has embarked on the Ocean, but this vessel waited in the river, waiting for the sum of 30,000 pd. sterl. which was saved from the wreck of the Galicia, on the coast of Villa-Nova de Milfontes. The 10th regiment has embarked on the sea, leaving all the transports sailed from the Tagus, having on board the 10th regiment of hussars.

The constitutional tunes were forbidden to be hereafter played. D. Miguel, under pretence of a hunting party, had an interview with the Marquis de Chaves (the chief of the less rebels of Portugal.) General Canha (a constitutional general,) and a German Prince of Sachsen, were assassinated by the populace of Lisbon, who requested them to cry "Long live D. Miguel, absolute King."

Paris, March 19.

It is said that the 8th, 18th, 49th and 59th regiments of the troops of the line will form part of the expedition on Granada, arriving on their march to Tolon. These four regiments are commanded by M. de la Poderosa, M. de la Torre, M. de Lérida and De Loyola. This last officer is a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

Washington, April 3.

The family of the late General Brown left this city yesterday for their future residence at Brownsville, in the state of New-York. This interesting family, and, especially the amiable relict of our deceased friend, enjoy with them the warmest esteem, as well as the sympathy of the whole society of this city, where they have made sincere friends of all who have known them. It is an act of blind liberality, which deserves to be mentioned, that the proprietors of the stages and steam boats, through the whole route of over 500 miles, have, by the friendly agency of the Postmaster General, tendered to Mrs. Brown, the gratuitous conveyance of herself and family, from this city to Brownsville.

Nat. Intelligencer.

Notabilities. — It appears by the letter from Amsterdam, that the project of cutting a canal to unite the Gulf of Mexico with the Pacific Ocean, is about to be revived under the auspices of the Netherland Government, which has entered into communications with the government of Guatemala or Central America for that purpose. General Van Vlier, who was deputed on that mission, has just returned to Europe, and it is stated that several persons are on the way to their Netherlands from Guatemala, who are authorized to carry into effect the arrangements connected with the undertaking.

Germany. — The copies of the pamphlet in defence of the government of Brunswick, published at Hamburg, and chiefly directed against Count Minister, and which were sent to the Library of Brunswick for safe keeping, were ordered by order of the government.

New Zealand. — It appears that the efforts of the English missionaries in New Zealand have proved wholly unsuccessful. Their moral exertions, and of strenuously forbidding dissipation are due to their perseverance, and cannot excuse the horrible practice of cannibalism.

Cultivation of Sugar. — Sugar, it is thought, may be every where cultivated south of latitude 33 degrees. The business is healthy, the labor less than in the cotton crop, and the case as easily cultivated as corn after it is planted. Like corn, the crop is finished early in June, and there is little to do during the heat of summer, or till October or November, when they cut, grind and boil the cane. This last takes four weeks or more, and is looked on rather as a frolic than a labor. It is said to be a very erroneous opinion that it takes much capital or many hands to make sugar. The cane is a harder plant, too, than corn or wheat, and is not injured by spring frost, as it does not begin to joint till May.

An Unfortunate Lover. — On Saturday night, about ten o'clock, a neighbor observed a man getting over the fence-wall of a house not far from Moore's pleasant. An attempt had been made to break into the house in the course of the preceding night, and the person who observed the man on the wall, thinking he might be a burglar,

Singular Detection. — On Tuesday evening last, a gentleman was robbed in the Circus of uncounted dollars — a few hours afterwards, another gentleman, returning home, met in the street a man greatly intoxicated, and who, after a short conversation, was found to have in his purse $8 or 900 dollars. The latter gentleman, conceiving he would be saving a man who, in his consciousness had gone farther perhaps than he intended, and who, in the condition he was then in, ran the risk of losing the money he had, determined on the benevolent purpose of conducting him to the watch-house, and deposited the money with the officer of the guard. Early the next morning, the gentleman who lost the money made application at the guard-house, and identified the same as his property — and Jolly Bacchus was lodged in jail, to await his trial at the next Court of Sessions for this district. We are informed the above person is just out of a seven year's apprenticeship in the New-York State Prison.

Murder. — On the 6th ult. at Mr. Gulin's tavern, in Womelsdorf, Pennsylvania, Mr. John Witman, an industrious mechanic, was murdered by a man named Umstead, who came from Baltimore or Philadelphia a few weeks before. There was a merry-making at the tavern, it being the day after Good Friday, and Witman, who could play upon the violin, was sent for. He was treated impudently by Umstead, and refused to play. Umstead told him he would whip him if he did not play, whereupon they fought, and Umstead had the worst of the battle. They afterwards made friends, said Witman played for the people to dance. While it was intent upon playing a reel, Umstead struck him in the head with a butcher's knife; he rallied and died in a few minutes. The murderer, supposing that he had knocked W. down with his fist, fell upon Umstead and flogged him severely; but when Witman was raised up, the knife was discovered, thrust up to the hilt through both temples. The murderer was immediately bound, and on Sunday lodged in Reading jail.

New Invention. — At a meeting of the Royal Society last week, a gun was exhibited to the members, which is made to go off without a lock. The contrivance to avoid the expensive and troublesome appendage is exceedingly simple. The trigger, on being pulled, lets off a piece of spring steel sharply upon the nipple or detonating cap, which is placed in a hole communicating with the powder and shot, and of course the gun goes off immediately.

There is a portion of mankind who are always, either naturally or habitually, behind hand. This trait of their character is easily discovered in every thing that relates to their conduct and pursuits in life. Such a man goes to bed, and as a necessary consequence gets up too late in the morning. Being out of bed too late, he is too late at breakfast, and this deranges the affairs of his household all the forenoon. Having been behind-hand at breakfast, he is behind-hand at dinner and lastly at supper. If he makes an appointment, he never gets to the place in season; and if he is to meet a board of directors, or a committee, or any public body whatever, he is always twenty minutes or half an hour too late, and upon being reminded that he has obliged his associates to wait, and thereby to waste their time, he charges his delay to his watch, which, like his owner, is almost invariably at least a quarter of an hour too slow. If he has made arrangements to leave town in a stage, especially if it is an early stage, he commonly forces the carriage to wait sometimes this or, what is not very uncommon, is left behind. If he intends to take his departure in a steamboat, you will meet him two streets off at the last bell toll, and after running down to the wharf till he is out of breath, he finds the boat hauled off, and if he gets aboard at all it is by the long boat, and often at the hazard of his life. If he is an attendant upon public worship, he never arrives the church until after service has commenced, and greatly disturbs the congregation by entering in the midst of their devotional exercises.

In short, such men labour, and toil, and drudge on through life, just as uniform and regular in their concerns half an hour too late, as punctual people are in season. If such persons could, by some great exertion, redeem that half-hour, and set their watches right, they might go on with the same care they do now, and always be in season.

An Unfortunate Lover. — On Saturday night, about ten o'clock, a neighbor observed a man getting over the fence-wall of a house not far from Moore's pleasant. An attempt had been made to break into the house in the course of the preceding night, and the person who observed the man on the wall, thinking he might be a burglar, informed the master of what she had seen. He, under the belief that the man was a thief, armed himself with a huge horsewhip, with which polled forth into the yard. The man, however, attempted to conceal himself in a post-house; but his hiding-place was discovered; he was dragged forth to the light, out of the sun, but of the moon; and received a sound horsewhipping for his audacity. The watchman was then called; and the poor fellow, who, it afterwards appeared, had ascended the wall, like Romeo in search of his Juliet, to have some hushing discourse with his sweetheart, was sent to Bridewell, there to ruminant on the goodness in keeping a stone wall in pursuit of his Desdemona.

PANORAMA EXHIBITION.

THE great Panoramic picture of the City of Paris—the Capital of the Kingdom of France is now exhibiting in the building on the public square of Raspail street.

The view is taken from the roof of the south end of the palace of the Tuilleries; the spectator most therefore imagine himself pleased in this elevated situation which commands an extensive prospect over the whole city.

Immediately under the eye of the spectator in a southern direction, in the roof of the King's apartments, and on the right that of the long picture gallery stretching eastward as far as the Louvre; — This gallery borders the place de Catalogne on the south side and the new gallery on the north, in the centre of this square is seen the triangular arch. On this square Bonaparte was wont to review his legions previous to their departure for their respective destinations, and here oft the walls resounded with the clang of martial music. On the west side of the palace the spectator looks down on the gardens of the Tuilleries, and beyond these in the distance is seen the palace of the Gardes Meubles, and the woods of the Champs Elysees in the distance.

When we consider that Paris has been the theatre of so many great political events which have convulsed Europe for thirty years past, few, if any subjects of equal interest for a picture could be offered to the public.
