Our French Lesson No 7

1. Leissu're - les libres, les lisses.
2. Les ouvriers - les ouvrières, les ouvriers.
3. Perfume - parfumes.
5. Blouse - blouses.
7. Quelle heure est-il ?
8. Qui est-ce ?
10. C'est une idée - c'est une bonne idée.

The advantages claimed for the English language and its simplicity, which are based on the notion that it is a language of the English people, have been presented in a way that is not understood by the French speakers. Any attempt to promote the French language as the only language of the French people is not supported by the French speakers. In fact, the French speakers believe that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The concentration of the French speakers on their language, the French language, is not supported by the English speakers. The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.

The French speakers feel that the French language is not as simple as the English language. The French speakers feel that the French language is more difficult to learn than the English language.