New York, July 21.

Another general was captured in the Kentucky last night by a force of Federal troops who had surrounded him. The city of Harrodsburg was surrendered by a force of Confederates under Maj. Gen. M. R. Moultrie, without a struggle. The capture of Harrodsburg is a signal victory for the Federal government, and it is expected that a similar result will be achieved in other parts of the Confederacy.

[Translating for the American]

Ingram, Montgomery, President of the Confederacy, has declared that he will not give up his claim to the presidency until the people of the South agree to it. He has also stated that he will not sign any treaty that will be detrimental to the interests of the Confederacy.

[Document truncated]

SALES AT AUCTION.

ON Tuesday, the 1st of August, at 1 o'clock, a sale of real estate, including land and buildings, will be held at the Court House, and on the premises of Messrs. H. and B. L. Smith, 123 Market Street.

[Document truncated]

[Documents related to sales and auctions, various dates and locations, with specific details of properties and conditions of sale.]

[Document ends with various notices, including one for a real estate auction on August 1st, and another for a sale on August 16th.]