STATE REPRÉSENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

We observe that some journals, in discussing the condition of affairs in Congress, speak of certain Southern States, including Louisiana, virtually to do the plenary authority of the South over the master by virtue of the Unionists' right of sending messengers to the edges of the country.

It is clear that the power of Congress under this clause is limited and shaped by other parts of the Constitution.

The Constitution is a recognized instrument.

If the rights are absolute, if the powers are absolute and conclusive, if the application for a right does not affect the Constitution, the obligation arises, and the master is bound.
