war, unemployment and the overall economy.
"All of these issues will require action by the congress," he said. "That is where the crucial debate, deliberation and ultimate decision will occur—that is where I want to be."
As a cabinet officer, Ribicoff has been in the thick of the administration's fight with the American Medical association over health care for the aged. He also has been the guiding force in Kennedy's campaign to overhaul government welfare programs.
He has been a personal and political friend of Kennedy since they served together in congress. He served as floor manager in the 1960 Democratic convention drive that sent Kennedy on his way to the presidency.
Ribicoff was born April 9, 1910 at New Britain, Conn., the son of an immigrant Polish family. He sold newspapers and worked at odd jobs to save money for college, and later worked his way through law school at the University of Chicago.
After practicing law in Hartford for six years, he entered politics and won a seat in the state assembly. He then served as judge of the Hartford police court, and later won two terms in congress.
Ribicoff won a narrow victory in his first race for governor, but his re-election was by the largest plurality in the state's history.
While in the state house he won national acclaim for his crack-down on speeding motorists.

seeking legislative authorization of an additional one cent per gallon on the gas tax. He said he will bring the matter up at the next meeting of the county mayors council.
Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald promised that when the study is completed in September the board of supervisors will meet with officials of each of the county's 17 cities in an effort to reach agreement on which of the city and county roads should be included in the bond construction program.
It is now planned that the bond election will be consolidated with the county-wide school elections in April.

Sig Varian's Widow Dies

PORTOLA VALLEY — Authorities were puzzling today over the cause of death of Mrs. Winifred Varian, widow of Sigurd Varian, the millionaire inventor and industrialist.
An autopsy disclosed today that Mrs. Varian, 56, did not die of natural causes, according to Deputy Coroner Robert Cole. It was assumed, he said, that death was caused by an overdose of some toxic substance, such as sleeping pills. Further tests, which may take as long as 10 days, will be needed to learn the exact cause of death.
Sheriff's deputies listed her death as an apparent suicide but Cole marked his file "undetermined."
"The only thing that would point to suicide," Cole said, "was that little note in the kitchen."
The note, scrawled on a scratch pad and found on the kitchen table in her Ladera home, read:
"Sweetheart, I can't live without you."
It was signed, "Winn."
Mrs. Varian, clad in pedal pushers and blouse, was found on the bed in the master bedroom of the home at 24 Aliso way, by her daughter, Mrs. Charles Van Linge, 130 North Castanya way, Ladera.
Mrs. Van Linge told Deputy Sheriff Frank Bastasini that she had gone to her mother's house with her three small children to swim in the pool. When she found all the drapes drawn and doors locked, she said, she became worried. She peered through the bathroom window and saw her mother's body sprawled on the bed. Mrs. Van Linge called her husband, a Palo Alto stockbroker, and then entered the house through a window.
Van Linge summoned Dr. A. S. Felsoyanyi, who pronounced her dead. Cole said the doctor told him that Mrs. Varian had committed suicide.
Cole conjectured that Mrs. Varian died Tuesday night. A Monday evening paper was on a table inside but a Wednesday morning paper was still on the porch.
Mrs. Van Linge told Bastasini that her mother had recently returned from a vacation in Mexico but that she had been depressed since the death of her husband, who was killed last October in a plane crash off the Mexico coast. Varian left an estate worth more than $3,000,000.
Cole said no drugs or drug containers were found in the house. A glass of liquid, apparently water, was found on the headboard of the bed and will be analyzed, the deputy coroner said.

French television program as it was being broadcast.
Several hours later, a program came to TV screens in this country "live" from Goonhilly Downs, England.
While the programs originated in Europe, both came here by a circuitous route to and from outer space. European signals were beamed skyward to rendezvous with the Telstar satellite.
The 170-pound, man-made heavenly wonder picked up the signals, magnified them 10 billion times and beamed them down again to this portion of our shrinking earth.
This entire procedure took only milliseconds, since television signals travel at the speed of light—186,000 miles per second—and Telstar is never more than 3,500 miles above the earth.
In less technical terms, the achievement brought French singer Yves Montand and lovely blonde chanteuse Michele Arnaud onto American screens. The program was so clear it might have been coming from around the block.
The French presentation was taped earlier in Paris for the historic broadcast from Lannion in Brittany and was seen here on all three networks for eight minutes beginning at 4:35 p.m. (PDT).
The show opened with Jacques Tarette, French minister of posts and telecommunications, praising American-French co-operation and then advising:
"Relax, you are in Paris. I invite you to spend a few pleasant moments with me."
Marette's words, spoken in French, were translated into English for the benefit of his foreign audience. The program was not seen in France, where the national network was already off the air for the night.
Telstar was on its 15th orbit around the earth, moving from Newfoundland to the English Channel, when it relayed the French signals here. As it moved eastward and out of range at its speed of 16,000 m.p.h., the television picture dissolved into static patterns.
Several hours later, CBS made use of Telstar's 16th orbit to relay history's first live show from England to the United States. The 12-minute program featured British officials explaining the transmission controls at Goonhilly Downs and praising the American achievement.
The French broadcast caused an international squabble. In a television newscast, a BBC commentator accused the French of jumping the gun in bidding to be the first European country to beam an entertainment program across the Atlantic.
The commentator said the French had broken an agreement with the European Broadcasting Union which provided for a joint European television program to be transmitted via Telstar to the United States July 23.
On the same day, the three major American networks will transmit a 15-minute news program to Europe via Telstar.

Churchill In Setback

would not leave if Churchill's condition worsened.
The medical bulletin issued this afternoon was signed by four doctors in attendance. It said:
"Since yesterday, Sir Winston Churchill has had a slight rise in temperature due to bronchial infection.
"There has been some decrease in the swelling of the leg."
A hospital spokesman said he could not expand on the announcement.
"I cannot amplify this," he said. "It means exactly what it says. A bulletin was issued today because of this rise in temperature. Another bulletin will be issued tomorrow at about the same time."
The spokesman added that Sir Winston had not been out of bed since the phlebitis (inflammation of a vein) developed on July 7 or the blood clotting condition arose on Saturday.
In cases such as this, it is known that doctors usually like to get their elderly patients moving about since immobility can cause such chest complications as bronchial pneumonia. Churchill himself has a long medical case history of chest ailments.
"He is a little less well because of the infection," the hospital spokesman said and declined further comment.
A spokesman for the British Medical association said it seemed obvious there was now a congestion of the tubes leading to the lungs. But he said this did not mean the condition would automatically lead to pneumonia. It was understood that Sir Winston is not suffering from pneumonia.
Doctors' Dilemma
But the twin conditions of thrombosis and the fracture presented doctors with a dilemma. The conditions require exact opposite treatment. The broken thigh, pinned together in an operation June 29, needs exercise. The thrombosis calls for a rest.
Today's medical bulletin was signed by Lord Moran, Churchill's personal physician, Prof. H. J. Seddon, Dr. Evan Bedford and P. H. Newman, the surgeon on the case. Lord Moran told newsmen, "I cannot tell you anything about Sir Winston's condition."
It was the fifteenth bulletin to be issued since Churchill was admitted to Middlesex hospital and came only a few hours after Lady Churchill visited her husband.
She told reporters after the morning visit, "I find him a little drowsy this morning but he seems to be in quite good spirits."
She returned to the hospital for an evening visit at 5 p.m.
Lady Churchill was the only visitor to the hospital today although Bernard Baruch, an old friend of the wartime prime minister, is waiting for an opportunity to see the patient. Baruch, who will be 92 next month, is in London on private business. He and Churchill have been warm friends for half a century.

Board Hits Back in Fuss

The San Mateo city personnel board today decried the city employees' criticisms of its salary recommendations, and in turn leveled sharp criticism at employees for alleged inaccurate presentations in the press and before the city council.
Board members jointly, through Personnel Director Robert Coppock and Chairman Fulton Lee, said they were "disturbed" by what they considered inaccurate information concerning salaries. Board members said they "feel

Rev. King Is Released

In Washington, the justice department was reported deeply involved in King's release. A spokesman said Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy had been keeping President Kennedy informed in the matter and that Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall had made several telephone calls to Georgia in King's behalf at the direction of the attorney general.

Belmont advanced the theory that minor earthquakes and occasional sonic booms since the building was constructed nearly four years ago may have weakened the beam or aggravated shrinkage.
Lemon said he has some ideas, but declined to state what they are until he prepares a written report.
