THE PURITY OF THE BALLOT BOX In view of the fraudy and corruption which characterize exciting political contests in large cities, and which, whether justly for not, tavhern charged upon both parties during the re-cent catrage, several plans have been suggered for ensuring a legal and honest vote. For our selves, we have on all suitable occasions advo cated the adoption by the Legislature of a stringent Redserge Law, as the only effectual means of attaining the proposed end. We have uniformly sustained this measure; we did so weeks to we for in the efficacy of the project. A other remedies against fraud are hopeless. The week wice system commended by the Delta may ren fer the voter's opinions public, but would be seet our to the vira roce system. It seriously of the act as a species of moral coercion, compoling the employee to uphold the political sen-tenents of the employer, under penalty of incurring the displeasure of the latter, and per haps of herfening his place. The World's Exhibition at London was finally closed on the 15th lostant, after being open upwards of five months. It had been closed to the public several days previously. The London Times has the following account of the final scene on the public days:

As the day wore on a remarkable concentration of people in the nave began to be divernible. The side avenues and courts were deserted, and from end to end of the building nothing was to be seen bett agreat sea of human beings filling up the contre, and and beings filling up the contre, and and beings filling up the control of the control by a thousand different currents of curiority, which kept the mass in motion without progress. Time passed, and the circulation in the transcrip became rather impeded. The people seemed to be taking up their position there, and the galleries, as far as the eye could reach, were occupied by spectoors, who, as they gazed on the vast assemblage beneath, evidently appeared to expect that some public demonstration, was about to be made.

The organs, which had been played constantly during the early part of the day, were now sleft, and even that wonderful man Herr Sommer, with his still more wonderful instramoti, with torth no longer those astoneshing volumes of sound which have rendered him, preventence, the trumpeter of the Exhibition Nothing was to be heard but that strange and mysterious hum of voices which, rising from all large assemblages is impessing, but which, in the Crystal Phlace, awelling upward from more than lifty thousand people, leaves an impression upon the mind not soons to be forgotten, it was drawing near five o'clock, the whole anave east and west, the area of the transept, and the galaries might be seen packed with a dense mass of black lists, through which, at intervals, a struggling female bounct emerged here and there into light.

The vast multitude had now become stationary, and were evidently awaiting, in sient but interest excitement, the last cot a great event, immortal in the annals of the iniciteenth c
