NEW-UILLANS. SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 23, 1831.

The ship Antioch, from I iverpool, came last night into port. She sailed on the 22d February, and consequently brought no news later than those received via. New-York. The ship ning, when I and my neighbor called and werk Tennessee was on the bar.

This day is appropriated for the opening of the Pontchartrain Rail Road at 4 o'clock P. M. An immense crowd, we have no doubt, will meet on the spot to witness this monument of the public spirit of our citizens, who have coninto execution. Horses will be made use of to draw the vehicles, until the locomotive engines

For the second time of their new engagement, Mr. and Mrs. Cramer Plumer appeared in the marriage of Figaro, on Thursday last. The sounds of their voices greeted us like the herald of returning pleasures. And never were those tones more mellow, more soothing to the ear ion. There might have been some halting in the progression of the piece, but let the blame be with those who committed the errors. For our approbation of those delightful singers,-it is but the echo of the audience's satisfaction. We would follow the great master's dogma; we would mark him who could hear them unmoved, as a fit subject for any sinister attribute. Some may love to shudder before the soul searching glance of the tragedian-may ask for strong and powerful emotious: others delight in less tumultuous, though probably not less pleasurable sensations. And Mr. and Mrs. Plumer have the is so eminently calculated to excite. They apto the amateurs. The Brigand is announced as the after piece; Massaroni, though a "rascal cursitor" is not without interest.

[From the New York Commercial Advertiser.] Detection of Smith .- The following plain narrative has been brought to us by the counsel for Mr. Bangs, for publication. As the publi cation would unavoidably be made, though many of the circumstances may probably come un-

On Saturday morning Heft word with Mrs. Bangs if any thing more should be discovered to [send immediately to the shop for me. Nothing occurred till said Jones returned in the aftermoon about 5 or 6 o'clock, with a small trunk, and early in the evening he went out with it un der his cloak. Mrs Bangs went up stairs to his room to see what she could discover, and then discovered t at he had packed up his cloths. brushes dec. which before had lain about the room, and had strapped up his trunks, apparently to move. She then sent for me, and communicated what she had discovered. This determined me to act. I called upon a neighber, stated to him what we had discovered, Mrs. Bang's suspicions and my belief that this person was the bank robber, or in some way connected with the robbery, and my determination to take him, and examine his trunks, and enquired of him where Hays, with whom I was totally unacquainted, lived. My neighbor informed me that he knew Hays, and would go with me to him, and he did so. My neighbor introduced me to Hays, to whom I stated the cause of my suspecting that the said Jones was the bank robber or concerned in the robbery. On making the statement to Hays he enquired-shether I wished him to go with me, to which I replied-"certainly, that is what I came here for." Hays then turned to his son, and asked him if he would walk up with him. Hays remarked that he had had information did not think it sufficient ground to go upon, but intended that if he had been passing that way to call in. When at the corner of Canal and Elm streets. RECENT IMPORTATION. The Hydrocomion, or Rain Bath. EVERY thing connected with the cleanliness of the body; every thing, which may act as a preventative of disease belongs to the province of hygeran medicine, which Mr. Schneider has ately enriched with the precious discovery of his Hydroconion. The importation into France by Mr. Walz, of the apparatus necessary to the application of this new mode of baths, has obtained for him the approbation of the society of practical medicine, in Paris, to whom he has submitted his process, and ensured him, from the public's general use of his new apparatus, a just reward for the services which has readered to humani-These baths, the unefulness of which is generally acknowledged in France, both in a medical light, and markedly in that of public salubriparticularly mentioned, in order to recommend o the public of New Orleans, the apparatus lately imported by Mr. Gicquel. The liquid contained in a reservoir above the both, and yielding to its weight presses according to the laws of hydraulies, into narrower tubes, fixed in a variety of whys, so as to issue through a great number of dapillary apertures. which project it in the form of a water spout on the surface of the whole body, or on one, or the the capillary aperture. Simple or composed, natural or artificial waters, decoctions, aromatic tinctures, apirituous distillments, can be alike made use of in the hydroconion; and the apparatus may be employed, not only in rain but also in shower baths, whether with a liquid or with steam, as applied to th other of its parts, according to the direction of head, trunk, or limbs of the body.

In practical medicine, the use of this bath, from the various modes of its application has produced the happiest results; physicians have already obtained signal success in a variety of cases, such as gouty obstructions, glandula affections, contractions of muscles, scurvy, tardy digestions, weariness, exhaustion of every sort turbercular and cutaneous affections; eruption of every species, even to the wart-kind; nervou weakness, and in a number of diseases in which it is equally necessary to tonify annimal econo my.

Considered in the light of a powerful hygeian auxiliary, the use of the hydroconion is not only salutary, but produces a healthful vigor, a development of strength, which by no means result from the bath by the immersive process; the per petual washing of the different pa ts of the bodv. by the means of the capillary aprinkling: the excitement produced on the skin by this con stant aprinkling, the general tone and activity. which are the consequences of it; the agreeable sensations, which it creates, the faculty of transmuting the steam into rain and the latter into the former: each and all of those are qualities of planation on the subject.

The rain bath differs from the immersion bath, in this respect; that in the use of the latter, the pression exercised by water on the bod frequently products a very great difficulty of breathing; a tendency of blood to the head, and hence headaches and vertigos.

The bath by aspersion, on the other hand, produces quite a contrary effect; the water, falling on the whole superficy of the body in small drops more or less tepid, assists perspiration; a gentle itiliation is experienced in every part of the body: the process of respiration is regular; it grad-ually expands, the pulse acquires liveliness withon losing its regularity, and if the expression be allowed, the articulations become more vigor ous; for that feeling of weakhess, ever attendant on the bath by immersion, in never experienced In conclusion the discovery of the hydroconion may be considered as an additional domestic life, as well on account of the pleasurable sensations, which it creates, as the immense advantages of cleanliness, so very salutary to the
