The Hon. Samuel L. Southard has accepted an invitation to deliver a discourse before the Academy immediately after the adjointment of Congress. William Rawle, Jr. E.q., one of the Vice Provosts, has been selected to deliver the annual discourse at the opening of the next session. The dissertation on the Constitution of the United States, by Mr. Du Ponceau, the distinguished Provost of the institution, will be published by the Academy in a few days. The work is addressed to the members of the academy and was composed for their immediate benefit. At their instance the author has consented to its pull cation. Since his assent for this purpose was obtained, he has been employed in making additions to the work to render it as far as possible a work of popular utility. opular utility.

Or readers are aware that we asserted that Edward D. White would be, is case of his election to the gubernatorial claim, a mere tool in the hands of Judge Porter. The Argus, the least discreet of the White presses, substantiates our charge as follows: Let Irishmes, remember that Judge Porters is the true friend of Edward D. White'!!! The Argus is right: this should be remembered, not only, we would add, by Irishmen, but by every other class of citizens:
