The Flower of the unwieldy Ocean, from New York, has obliged us with files of papers from that city to and to the 24th inst.

We are indebted to Mr. Wm. Hoskyn, 20 Exchange Alley, for that excellent New York literary weekly, the Herald Twigs, of Oct. 7th., copies of which may be had of Mr. H.

We are under renewed obligations to the Purser of the Evening Star for candidate, including New York papers of the latest date.

We thank Mr. Gen. A. Williams, clerk of the steamer Gray Eagle, for Vicksburg papers of the latest date.

NEGRO ORPHANS TO BE APPRENTICED.—To relieve the Government of the expense of maintaining negro orphans, and to give them an opportunity for acquiring useful skill and industrious habits, Gen. Fullerton, of the Freedmen's Bureau, had determined that three of them of proper age shall be bound to suitable persons as apprentices. A measure so considerate and judicious could not promptly taken, is an additional and striking evidence of the practical good sense and the statesmanlike views of Gen. Fullerton.

CONGRESSIONAL.—There are now three candidates for Congress in the Second Congressional District. Mr. Jacob Barker runs as the Democratic nominee, having been chosen in place of Mr. Roulet, declined. Mr. J. W. Overall, who received a handsome but jaunty-flayed vote at the meeting of delegates that nominated Mr. Barker, runs as an independent candidate for reasons explained in an address to the citizens of the District published in his paper, the South of Sunday. Gol. A. F. Field runs on the nominee of the National Conservative party.

VARIETIES THEATRE.—Miss Heron appeared here last night to a large and brilliant house in her favorite and powerful personation of Camille. She has been so often before our theatre-going public in this character that few are not familiar with her peculiar style of rendering it. We could say little on that point that would not be a repetition and a subjectivity. We will only observe that Miss H. has, if anything, intensified the passionate vigor, the intense uniqueness, we might perhaps say the strenuous eccentricity of her Camille. Last night if it had a more noticeable feature than another it was in being more Heronic than ever.

In the society scenes, Mr. Macauley's Armand was rather tame and stiff. In the passionate situations, especially in the card-room scene, he showed undoubted power and made a fine effect.

Camille is to be repeated to-night, after which Miss Heron is to appear in her new play, The Belle of the season.

STEAMBOAT MAJESTIC BURNED.—We learn by the arrival yesterday morning of the steamboat Geo. Quitman, Capt. Cannon, from Vicksburg, that the Majestic, Capt. Dowty, from Shreveport, was burned at Point-Coupee Post-Office Sunday morning, about 9 o'clock. The fire originated in her hold. She had a number of passengers, several of whom came down on the Quitman. No lives were lost. The boat is a total loss. Her cargo consisted of 660 bales of cotton and sundry merchandize. The list of cargo and consignees will be found in the marine news column.

Ex-Commissioner Conway and the "Black Conspiracy."

Ex-Commissioner Conway, of the Louisiana Freedmen's Bureau, evidently differs from this community, as much as the Executive authority at Washington differs from himself, on the question whether he was the right man in the right place. In the subjoined card, which appeared yesterday morning, while complaining that our people and our press have misjudged and misrepresented his official and political conduct, he in effect and in equal measure accuses the President of gross injustice in relieving him of his Bureaucratic duties and responsibilities:

THE BLACK CONSPIRACY.

To the Editor of the N. O. Times—SIR: The above embraces an idea which foolishly appears to have had a lodgement in the brains of some gentlemen who, anxious to "find a sensation" for the public mind, appear to partake it with some appearance of seriousness.

As my own name has been used in connection with this absurd notion, it is only proper that I should say that the colored people of the State of Louisiana have no idea of any such movement, and that the necessity of peace, tranquility and obedience to law, has always been urged by me in all that I have had to say to them.

"Armed Negro Conspiracy," "Black Conspiracies" exist only in the dreams and imaginations of men who write for pay. During the war which has just ceased, when there was not a Freedmen within the reach of lines organized in anything like regular or systematic labor, my aim was to induce them to work, and not to engage in any wicked conspiracy. I am now more than ever impressed with the necessity of being honest and true to my employer, and to observe peace and quietness. I am now more than ever impressed with the necessity of publishing "dreams and imaginations," and "foolish and wicked conspiracies" in regard to "armed negro colonies," "black conspiracies," and all "sense of fears." Mr. Conway, however, takes an amusing view of the freedmen's power
