

IBM WebSphere Education Self-Paced Virtual Training

Train on your terms

- Train on your terms. Start and stop training as your work priorities dictate
- Deep technical content delivered to your desktop helps you maximize your training budget by saving travel and lodging expenses

Increasingly, companies are challenged on many fronts to maximize both their budgets and productivity. At the same time, competitive pressures necessitate that your IT team is optimally skilled to reshape and extend your IT infrastructure to respond to new challenges and opportunities the marketplace presents. So, how can you balance both your budget, productivity and skill priorities at the same time? IBM WebSphere® Education Self-Paced Virtual training strikes a balance providing budget savings and increased employee productivity.

IBM WebSphere Education Self-Paced Virtual Courses: Train On Your Terms

IBM WebSphere Education Self-Paced Virtual courses allow you to train on your terms. These Web-based courses provide deep technical content—the same as our classroom courses—but with added flexibility to meet the demands of your business.

- Course Content. Self-Paced Virtual courses are based on the same deep technical lessons that are found in our classroom courses.
- Flexibility. You can start and stop a Self-Paced Virtual course as needed so you can maintain your work priorities. Have an urgent deadline to meet? Simply stop your session and pick up right where you left off. You have sixty days to complete an IBM WebSphere Education Self-Paced Virtual course.
- Support. While you can train on your own, you do not need to learn on your own. Self-Paced Virtual courses include access to the expertise of IBM WebSphere Education Instructors. Need to clarify a concept or have a question answered? Support is simply an e-mail away.

- Savings. You can maximize your training budget by training at your desk—saving travel and lodging expenses.
- Practice makes perfect. Just like our classroom courses, Self-Paced Virtual courses include access to remote labs and quizzes to cement and apply the concepts you learn.

Currently, there are over 100 Self-Paced Virtual courses available across some of our most popular curriculums, including WebSphere Application Server, Application Integration and Business Process Management. New courses are continually being added.
