George Patterson loved a young woman named Berry, who worked for Dr. Eugene O. Bachman, of 312 West Thirty-fourth street, New York.

The doctor's steps and arduous began to look nearly every morning like a garbage dump.

Two weeks ago Policeman Gutnecht was detailed to watch the doctor's house, and the other night he saw a man coming along the street with a paint pot.

He sneaked into the area of Dr. Bachman's house and began work on the basement windows.

"You won't do any more painting," the officer cried.

"Oh, I don't know," Patterson answered, and swinging the paint brush, which he still had in his hand, he brought it down on the officer's face.

GEN. HENRY TO GIVE AS GREAT INDEPENDENCE OF ACTION AS POSSIBLE.

Addresses a Letter to the Mayors and Councils in the Various Towns Outlining His Future Policy in Island.

Gen. Guy V. Henry, military governor of Porto Rico, has addressed a letter to the president of the insular cabinet and its members announcing his future policy.

He declares that so far as possible he wishes to give independence of action to the mayors and councils in the various towns, and to hold them responsible for the conditions that follow.

It is his intention, he says, to appoint to the council only men who are selected by the people or recommended by the council itself.

A man in office, Gen. Henry announces, will not be removed except for cause.

Gen. Henry asks the mayors how many instructors they can pay who can teach the English language.

The general declares it his purpose to introduce a few American policemen to teach the native policemen their duties, and to encourage them to exercise some authority.

Gen. Henry announces that men should not be put in jail unless charges are brought against them.

The general declares that politics should be discarded until laws are enacted to govern the island, and that articles of an incendiary character will not be allowed in the newspapers.

LOST A GENEROUS FRIEND.

Two Drivers of London Feel the Death of Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild.

The London bus drivers lost a friend in the late Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, who presented every driver and conductor with a brace of pheasants and bottle of wine at Christmas.

Baron de Rothschild left a fortune of about £2,000,000 ($10,000,000) and has made a generous gift to the nation by bequeathing to the British museum a magnificent collection of art treasures of the renaissance period.

SEND DOGS THROUGH MAILS.

Men Who Established Fraudulent Post Offices Are Indicted at Atlanta.

William Head and other citizens of north Georgia were indicted the other day by a federal grand jury at Atlanta for a unique scheme to defraud the postal authorities.

Finally they became avaricious and began sending dogs with registry and special delivery stamps attached to their collars and the post office inspectors detected the scheme.

CRAZY FREAK OF KANSAS MAN.

Ran Naked Through a Snowstorm at Clifton to Win a Bet of Five Dollars.

Something unusual occurred in town the other day, when the storm was raging at its fiercest, says the Clifton (Kan.) Banner.

He dashed from the hotel and sped away for the depot, nearly two blocks away. Down the street he went, where on most any other day 100 eyes would have been turned on him in astonishment, and after touching the depot, returned on the same route, now facing the driving snow, and reported at the hotel in precisely two minutes. The bystander was out five dollars.
