NEW-ORLEANS:
THURSDAY MORNING JUNE 20, 1844.

THE MEETING TO NIGHT.

The WHIGS of New Orleans, and indeed the citizens generally who are interested in the momentous questions to be decided by the State Convention, will hear in mind that at the public assembly this evening several of the candidates selected by the whig party will address their fellow citizens and exhibit the views which they entertain, in common with the party which they have been chosen to represent. We have been requested to state that the presence of the members of the "Democratic Party," will be acceptable. The whigs are willing, nay anxious to lay down broadly and unreservedly the principles which guide them in the approaching contest, and are perfectly ready to meet their opponents on any of the questions at issue between them. At all events we trust that every whig of New Orleans will be present this evening at the St. LOUIS BALL ROOM.

ANDREWS, THE ABOLITIONIST! AGAIN.—When we first became acquainted with this man, he arrived in the city in company with a committee appointed in Galveston, to solicit supplies of men and munitions of war, to repell the Mexican invasion of 1842. His connection with this committee induced us to think well of his knowledge of Texas affairs, and to suppose him to be a man of standing in his own country—Texas.

The next time we saw him was in April 1843; when he revealed to us certain abolition movements in Texas, to which he represented himself to be violently opposed. He is now in Boston, teaching phonography, a newly invented style of writing which he has brought with him from England. We find from the Boston papers, that he takes exceptions to an article of ours, showing up the manoeuvres and impostures whilst in this city; and quotations from divers Texas papers are adduced as proving his standing in that Republic. These quotations bear date anterior to his responsible practices, and are worth just as much as Arnold's commission would be, to prove him guiltless of the crimes he committed subsequent to his appointment in the Continental army.

When we speak of this ANDREWS as an impostor, we speak knowingly, for he did represent himself to us as being decided y and uncompromisingly opposed to the machinations he was himself the mover of. If this does not make him an impostor we know not what does.—His movements, since he left the South, are precisely such as an impostor would engage in. He is an errant and miserable chevalier d'industrie, a mere hypocrite and designing intriguer. We have abundant evidence that his representations to us, in other respects were false and calumnious. He is just of dimensions large enough to predicate the Texas negotiations upon—which partake throughout of the prominent features of ANDREW'S character.

"Still harping on my daughter."—The Herald continues to fling "our great speech," at the Arcade, in our teeth, as though we had abandoned any of the positions assumed on that occasion. Did we then approve the treaty of annexation or the means by which it was effected? No one will or can say so. Have we opposed annexation, as a measure in itself good and advisable, and if Texas is unable to maintain her separate sovereignty, necessary? When have we done so? Long before Mr. CLAY's letter appeared, and before any one pretended to have any information upon the subject, we denounced the manner in which the treaty was sprung upon the country and the objects for which the agitation was set on foot.

The Herald invokes the bloody ghost of Banquo, with twenty mortal murders on its crown, to scar our eyeballs withal. But it wont rise. That distinguished spectre has been so often impressed to give effect to dumb-show and pantomime that it will not reveal the glimpses of the moon upon electioneering occasions. In fact it has declined all party engagements, since the celebrated dash at Polk's re-election, when Mr. WEBSTER was made such terrific havoc with it, that ever afterwards wings called upon for political effect, it eloped away with the exclamation "my name is Haynes."

PENSACOLA.—To-morrow morning the steamer Creole resumes her trips to that watering place. She leaves the Lake shores after the arrival of the half-past 9 o'clock cars and makes a stay of twenty-four hours at Pensacola.

OUR COUNTRY UNDER PAR.—The Mobile Advertiser states that at the conclusion of a "Polk and Texas" meeting, held in a certain city not a thousand miles distant from Mobile, a few evening since, three cheers were given for "Polk and Dallas" and NINE for Texas! When the noise had somewhat subsided, a gentleman rose and addressed the chairman very gravely, as follows: "Mr. President, if in order, I beg most respectfully to propose—ONE cheer for OUR own COUNTRY."

"A Whig!" "a Whig!" "out of order," shouted the crowd. The chairman decided the motion out of order, and, adds the Advertiser—we lafi!

DEATH OF AN EDITOR.—A. L. Porter, Esq., editor of the Boston Traveller, died at his lodgings in Charleston, S. C., on the 13th inst. He had arrived in that city but a few days previous, on his return from St. Augustine, where he had passed several months for the benefit of his health.

BETTING ON ELECTIONS.—The District Court of Pennsylvania has decided that money staked in bets on an election may be sued for and recovered by the guardians of the poor, and cannot be recovered by either of the betting parties.

☞ There was a public discussion on Annexation, Charlotte Va., a few days ago—after which a vote was taken and the immediate annexationists routed. The vote stood 60 for annexation; 210 against.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.—The Ohio (Lorsine County) Atlas says: While the cannon was being fired in this place on Monday evening, on the reception of the news from the Democratic Convention, while in the act of loading a third time, it was prematurely discharged, and blew off an arm of one of the gunners, Peter Sherman and badly fractured the other—Joel Chub, another gunner, had the right hand blown off, and Nelson Lothrop a thumb. Sherman's recovery was doubtful. He has a wife and three children.

PENNSYLVANIA.—The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman of intelligence in Pennsylvania, and no party man, to his friend in Mobile:

Penn. June 6th, 1844.

The nomination of Polk and Dallas has surprised both parties; the Locos, with the exception of a few office holders, appear very much dissatisfied and do not refrain from giving vent to their disappointment and disgust of feeling. The Whigs are all rejoicing and in the best of spirits. They are anxious to bet on 10,000 majority in this State for Clay, but can find no takers. The principles of the candidates (Logue) are too directly opposed to the best interests of the State to command their party vote. Free Trade and Annexation, Pennsylvania will never submit to. Mr Dallas has recently expressed himself in favor of both measures. There are also some affairs with the Bank of the U. States, respecting which he will have to satisfy this community."

ANNEXATION.—"Immediate annexation," says the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, a Locofoco paper, "as it has been used, is a phrase without meaning. It was a mere trick, designed by its framers to veil this enormity and to deceive Anti-Texans, and it has accomplished its end. The immediate annexation ordinance, when passed, was a dead letter. It was never intended to be executed, will commence some months hence, when circumstances more favorable to the measure will exist, and consigned as now a grave and dishonorable duty with that body."

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

CORONER DAVIS, yesterday held an inquest upon the body of a German, called Theodore Hirt, who fell suddenly dead at the corner of Toulouse and Levee streets. Verdict—death by visitation of God.

☞ An old offender, named John Bailey, was yesterday sentenced by Recorder Genois, to three months imprisonment in the Workhouse, under the vagrant law.

DOTTINGS FROM THE DOME.

Washington, June 17th 1844.

Gentlemen,—A message was received by the House this morning, upon the subject of Texas, from Mr. Tyler, which I enclose. The reading made no sensation in that body.

Mr. Kennedy, of Maryland moved to lay the message on the table—yeas 66, nays 118.

It was then referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Adams asked leave to introduce the following resolution, which was read for information:

"Resolved, That the power of declaring war is exclusively vested by the constitution of the United States of the government to the Congress of the United States, and that any attempt to involve the country in a foreign war, without the consent of the Congress, is a flagrant violation of the powers belonging to Congress, and all regulars of them all their constitutional authority to vindicate their lawful powers."

The motion to suspend the rules to enable the above to be offered failed by a party vote of 78 to 108.

It is understood that Mr. C. J. Ingersoll, from the Committee of Foreign Relations, will make a report to the House to-morrow morning on the subject of the above message, and accompany it with a joint resolution authorizing the annexation of Texas, and that it will be forced through the House under the gag of the P. Q.

Mr. McDuffie's resolution of the same import was laid upon the table touches in the Senate, which is the best evidence of what the fate of Mr. Ingersoll's will be there.

The House went into Committee of the Whole, and took up the bill to re-charter the District Banks, upon which several violent political speeches were made by some of the most furious and ultra locofocos, in which they poured out their venom upon Banks in general and the District Banks in particular in the most patriotic fiery imaginable, denouncing the all way banks by name, with them as an evil to the country, and then—I consider these some reckless denunciations and calumniators.

The Navy Pension Bill and the Memphis Depot Bill were also considered in Committee of the Whole. The District Bank bill was not reported to the House, but is still in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McDuffie, in the Senate, gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to-morrow to extend the charters of the District Banks one year, on the supposition that the House would refuse to re-charter them now. The Senate will not act upon any question as to the incorporation that the House would refuse to re-charter them. The Senate will not act upon any question as to the incorporation of individual in this District. He agreed with the opinions recently advanced by Sir Robert Peel, that it would be better for the country that the Bank of England had never been introduced, but that its sudden withdrawal would be attended with great desolation. The people of this District are not to be placed in an embarrassing position for the approaching session—he desired to protect them from the fatalities that would ensue by denying them banking privileges.

In the Senate, Mr Benton's bill was called up merely for the purpose of enabling him to make an amendment to it, and not for action. The amendment made by him was merely to declare that all that part of Texas lying West of the one hundredth degree of longitude West of Greenwich shall be forever debarred from holding slaves, which amendment in fact leaves the bill as it was before, save that under it Texas so that the Eastern portion will contain 135,000 square miles, and the Western 135,500 square miles.

The Hon. Tilghman A. Howard, of Indiana, was confirmed to-day as Charge to Texas, and Francis J. Grund as Consul to Antwerp.

Several rejections took place, though none of any consequence.

I understand a Mr. Hayden is to be, or has been nominated as Collector of the Port of New Orleans. The inquiry is, who is Mr. Hayden.

HAWKEYE.

Another message from President TYLER, upon the Texas question, will be found in our columns to-day.—Nothing of importance can possibly be added, from what the annexation to be accomplished by treaty as the most suitable form in which it could be effected, should Congress deem it proper to resort to any other expedient compatible with the constitution, and likely to be accomplish the object, I stand prepared to yield my most prompt and active co-operation.

The great question is not as to the manner in which it shall be accomplished or not.

The responsibility of deciding this question is now devolved upon you.

JOHN TYLER.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE—CARELESS DRIVING.—On Sunday evening last, a drunken man with his wife and child in a wagon, were driving on Gurtner street, and when near the residence of Mr. E B. Lyman, turned suddenly into a lane in which were three children of Mr. L. with their nurse. The Buggy passed over all of them, smashing a willow wagon in which was the youngest child, and incredible as it may appear, they all escaped with but one slight bruise!—Mobile Herald.
